Blizzard Heads East And South Out Of Rockies

5 Dead, 17 Injured As Bitter Storm Rips 3 Mountain States

DENVER (AP)—A massive blizzard which struck destructive blows in the Rockies and sections of the midcontinent appeared losing some of its fury as it moved east and southward today.

At least five deaths were blamed on the stormiest weather of the season which whipped areas of Colorado, Wyoming and Montana. About 17 others were injured.

Nineteen passengers and the driver of a Greyhound bus were rescued from the stalled vehicle near the top of the Continental Divide on U. S. 30 in Wyoming.

Scores of motorists were marooned on open highways as strong winds drifted the falling snow. Day long falls of snow left many communities isolated. Fresh snow measured up to 19 inches in some parts of Colorado and Wyoming. It was from 5 to 8 inches in most of the storm belt and more than 30 inches in some mountain areas.

The storm also struck the Dakotas damaging blows as it moved southward to West Texas and eastward into Minnesota and Iowa. Snow fell during the night and amounts of new snow ranged from 1 to 5 inches in most areas.

TEMPERATURES ranged from around zero and below in the Dakotas, Montana, Wyoming and Colorado to the teens in much of the Midwest.

Solons Study U. S. Policy On Quemoy

WASHINGTON (AP)—Sen. Ervin (D-NC) said today he supports President Eisenhower's decision not to tip the Chinese Communists in advance whether the United States intends to defend Quemoy and the Matsu.

But Sen. Sparkman (D-Ala.), a Senate Foreign Relations Committee member, said that "if the administration really intends to defend Quemoy and the Matsu, then we should make it very clear to the Chinese Communists."

The two Democrats spoke after Sen. H. Alexander Smith (R-NJ) told the Senate yesterday continued free world control of these Nationalist-held islands close to the Chinese mainland is part of "a very clear and necessary deterrent to any aggressions by Moscow-supported China."

Ohio's Waterways Growing, But Flood Projects Needed

COLUMBUS (AP)—Col. J. L. Person says Ohio's water highways, which have been humming with increased activity in recent years, will be busier than ever with the completion of projects planned or now underway.

Person, Ohio river division engineer at Cincinnati, told the Ohio Water Clinic Conference: "The effect of water-borne commerce on the economy of Ohio will be magnified" by completion of the St. Lawrence Seaway.

Turning to flood control, Col. Person said reservoirs and other flood control devices prevented more than $140 million in damage from last October's Ohio River floods, when "Hurricane Hazel" dropped enough water on the upper Ohio Valley to have produced, without our completed projects, the third highest flood of record in the Pittsburgh area.

The prevention of damage in this one flood threat more than paid for the flood control projects that did the work, Person declared.

OTHER FLOOD projects that have more than paid for themselves in value of property damage prevented are Berlin and Mosquito Creek reservoirs in the Mahoning Basin, said Person.

The most nearly completed tributary basin "from the viewpoint of reservoir control" is the Muskingum Valley.

"Local protection projects have been completed at Wellsville, Massillon, Newark, Ironton, Portsmouth, New Boston and Cincinnati," said Person. "In the relatively short time that they have been in operation, all have prevented substantial damages and some of them have already produced benefits nearly equal to their original cost."

He termed the Scioto Basin one of the unsolved flood control problems in Ohio. "Changing economic conditions since the adoption of the authorized plan have resulted in a questionable economic balance in the case of the Big Darby, Deer Creek, Paint Creek, and Rocky Fork reservoirs."

"We have authority for a review study of the problem, and will proceed with it as soon as the availability of funds permits."

Warren Grocery Thugs Get $1152

WARREN (AP)—Nine customers, including women and children, were herded into a cooler yesterday by four neatly dressed robbers who made off with $1,152 from a market at nearby Kinsman.

William Woessner, manager of the store, said the bandits took $767 from the cash register, $85 from him and about $300 from his customers' wallets and purses.

Howard Trill, a sheriff's deputy, said that in addition the robbers got an undetermined amount of change—rolled dimes, nickels and quarters near the register.

Red Cross Gears Campaign Forces

Solicitors Begin Work Feb. 28; District's Goal Set At $10,910

Preparations for the 1955 Red Cross Fund Drive in Pickaway County neared completion Saturday as drive chairmen from 15 townships and the city of Circleville coordinated their final instructions.

Sheriff Charles H. Radcliff, drive chairman, presided at a meeting earlier this week to outline objectives for the volunteer workers. He discussed the problems that may arise and stressed the importance of a coordinated effort by all chairmen and their solicitors.

Radcliff was assisted by William Ammer, chairman of the Pickaway County Red Cross, and E. P. Zimmerman, Red Cross field representative.

On Monday, February 28, nearly 750 solicitors will begin to carry out their assignments throughout the county. The local goal this year is $10,910.

Forty-four percent of this total will be held by the Red Cross as Pickaway County's share of national and international funds.

Financial assistance to servicemen, veterans and their dependents amounted to $12.5 million last year.

Across the nation, 318 relief operations following disasters in 1954 were carried out by methods perfected in 73 years of relief work in thousands of catastrophes. Safety services, volunteer services, foreign disaster aid, nursing service, and the Junior Red Cross, are other vital parts of the American Red Cross.

Locally, the blood program is one of the best known services of the Red Cross. On the national scale, nearly three million pints of blood were collected for civilian and national defense use last year.

Red Cross blood costs the recipient nothing. And without it, thousands of sick and injured Americans would die each year.

Within the next few days, township and city chairmen for the fund drive will designate the solicitors for their areas. To acquaint everyone with the chairman in each township and city area, and the goals to be attained, Radcliff released names and figures.

The list, showing areas, goals and chairmen, follows:

Walnut Township, $500, J. Arthur Sark; Washington, $300, Mrs. Roy Strasser; Pickaway, $425, Mrs. Willard England; Deer Creek, $300, Mrs. Ted Corcoran; Williamsport, $200, Mrs. William Heiskell, Jr.; Ashville, $550, Mrs. Lowell Cooper, (Civic Club assisting); Scioto, $425, James Sealock; Jackson, $350, Mrs. Marvne Rhodes; Perry, $350, Mrs. Evans; New Holland, $350, William Frice;

Wayne, $175, Mrs. J. Austin Dowden; Darby, $250, Miss Lee Wardell; Salt Creek, $250, Mrs. Clarence Maxson; Harrison, $350, Lewis J. Hay; Madison, $350, Mrs. James Pickering; Muhlenburg, $150, Frank Beatty; Circleville, $250, Mrs. Forest Short; Monroe, $300, Mrs. Ethel Furniss, Circleville City, North, $1,300, Mrs. Carl Leist; Circleville City, South, $1,150, Mrs. Eleanor Dawson.

Township and area chairmen will meet next week with their solicitors for a final briefing and distribution of fund drive materials. A listing of solicitors will be available at that time.

Russia Repeats Its Demand For Freeze On Armaments

MOSCOW (AP)—Reiterating her 9-year-old stand on arms questions, the Soviet Union has called for a world freeze on armaments and the immediate destruction of all atomic and hydrogen weapons.

The Russian declaration was issued last night, a week before the scheduled reopening of disarmament discussions in London by a United Nations subcommittee. It announced that Deputy Foreign Minister Andrei Gromyko and Jacob Malik, Russian ambassador to London, would represent the Soviet Union in the talks.

Insisting that Western powers were intensifying the arms race and production of atomic weapons by pushing for the rearmament of Western Germany the statement said:

"The Soviet government considers atomic weapons should be banned and effective international control established for the prohibition of atomic weapons and the reduction of arms and armed forces, first of all of the major powers."

"An important step in that direction would be an international agreement under which the states would make a solemn pledge to refrain from using such weapons."

The statement proposed that a general international conference on reduction of armaments be held sometime this year and said the Soviet Union wants the nations:

1. To "abolish completely the stocks of atomic and hydrogen bombs which states possess, leading to exclusive utilization of atomic materials for peace."

2. Not to increase the size of their armed forces and their armaments as compared with the level of Jan. 1, 1955, as well as not to increase allocations for military purposes as compared with budget allocations for 1955.

Pineau Loses His Bid For French Title

PARIS (AP)—France's latest government crisis entered its third week today as the National Assembly rejected Christian Pineau's bid for the premiership.

Pineau who lost out 312-268 in a postmidnight vote, immediately reported his defeat to President Rene Coty. The president who has given three aspirants a chance since Pierre Mendes-France was voted out Feb. 5, lost no time arranging a series of consultations in quest of a new candidate.

Predictions were Coty would settle on a member of the Radical Socialist party. Seen as likely choices were Edgar Faure, Andre Morice, Maurice Bourges - Maunoury and Sen. Jen Berthoin. All were former ministers and all but Morice had served in Mendes-France's government.

Coty already has let the independents, Popular Republican Movement (MRP) and the Socialists try their luck at forming France's 21st postwar government. But all failed.

Independent Antoine Pinay could not get enough promises of support to even start formation of a cabinet.

Pierre Pflimlin of the MRP had to call it quits when he had his government almost finished. He could not fill in the final places.

Pineau's defeat came as no surprise. He always was on shaky ground. Figthers couldn't fly the round-

15 Communist Armed Junks Reported Sunk

Chiang Believes Enemy Building For Strike Against Nanchishan Isle

TAIPEI, Formosa (AP)—Chinese Nationalist pilots reported sinking 15 motorized armed Communist junks and damaging five others today in the second day of heavy air and surface strikes against the Reds.

The air force said its planes caught the Communist craft near the Taishan Islands, 120 miles northwest of Formosa, which the Reds apparently are trying to build up. Twenty-three of the ships were sighted.

The air force said the strike was made in the same area where the Nationalist air force and navy claimed to have sunk 21 Red ships and a submarine yesterday.

Tonight's communiqué said all planes returned safely. There was no mention of any opposition by Chinese Communist planes.

Another communiqué reported Nationalist planes heavily bombed installations on the Taishans last night and possibly destroyed one warship. It apparently was the same claim made in a late communiqué yesterday.

The Reds appeared to be making an intensive effort to build up on the Taishans which are within striking range of Nationalist positions on Nanchishan Island.

Newspapers reported earlier that Chinese Communist troops and supply ships sunk yesterday in Nationalist China's biggest naval victory radioed for air cover, but no Red planes appeared.

THE NATIONALISTS claimed 21 ships and a submarine sunk in the blazing action near the Taishan Islands, 120 miles northwest of Formosa and 15 miles from the Red mainland—within easy range of Communist air bases.

In reporting the action Friday the Nationalist Defense Ministry made no mention of Red fighters challenging Nationalist planes and surface craft which carried on the daylong attack.

Advance intelligence of the Reds' troop and supply movements set up the Nationalist strike in the Formosa Strait Friday.

The Nationalists exulted in a victory which lifted morale from the low caused by last week's withdrawal from the Tachen Islands.

Nationalist intelligence knew a day in advance that a 14-ship convoy would move troops and supplies southward from Wenchow Bay on Friday.

That gave Chiang Kai-shek's navy time to move its northern fleet to the Tachen Islands.

Marines Made Landing On Iwo Jima 10 Years Ago Today

By The Associated Press

Slowly and carefully, the young Marine private stacked his battle gear at his feet—carbine, canteen, gas mask, canteen, rations.

Finally he took off his helmet and dropped to his knees on the rough deck in the bow of the landing craft.

His lips began to move silently. Buddies who not long before had been chanting bawdy songs glanced toward him, then wordlessly moved forward to form a circle enclosing his spot of private prayer.

In the stern of the landing craft

another Marine retched violently and painfully—seasickness, maybe fear.

They were going in—in to what was expected to be, and was, one of the bloodiest beachheads in Marine Corps history—Iwo Jima.

It was a bright sunny morning, and light breezes barely rippled the water that Feb. 19, 10 years ago.

But the sky was filled with tiny clouds, wisps of smoke tossed high by incessant bombardment, by occasional hits of return fire from the pork-chop-shaped 44-square-mile island where thousands of men were soon to die.

Then it was H Hour. Landing craft stopped circling and walled ahead toward the beach 30 minutes away.

Louder and louder sounded the crash of shells as Navy bombardment continued to soften up the island and its Japanese defenders.

The buoy struck the beach. The landing ramp dropped.

The Marines leaped out on the run but were slowed immediately to a plodding walk by the volcanic ash and sand beach.

To the left was Mt. Suribachi, honeycombed with caves used for gun emplacements. To the right was high ground where the Japanese had set up their heaviest defenses and where, at the end, they made their last stand.

From each end of the island, mortar shells crashed onto the beach, tearing giant holes in the yielding sand.

Then the sand became an aid rather than hindrance. Quickly and almost simultaneously, it seemed, the Marines learned that emergency shelters could be scooped out almost effortlessly by sitting down and kicking the sand away.

But many died; more were wounded.

By the end of that bloody D day, one in every 12 of the 30,000 men who swarmed onto the beach was dead, wounded or missing.

And those casualties—2,420 on the first day, including 505 killed—were merely an indication of what was to come. By the end of the campaign casualties had climbed past 25,000—including more than 5,500 dead—among the invading Marines. Another 2,798 men of supporting naval units were killed or wounded.

The Japanese casualties? They can only be estimated. There were better than 20,000 Japanese on the island—none civilians. Only a few more than a thousand were taken prisoner.

Mt. Suribachi had been ticketed long in advance of the invasion for prompt conquest. It was known to be filled to overflowing with gun emplacements zeroed in on landing beaches and airfields.

The 28th Marine Regiment slammed onto the beach closest to its base. Promptly the 28th swung southward, their objective to silence those many guns, take Mt. Suribachi.

Pounded by fire every inch of the way they moved steadily ahead. Four days later with 895 casualties—510 dead—counted in the fight for Suribachi, the flag was raised on its crest and its guns were stilled.

That flag raising provided the setting for the photograph by Joe Rosenthal, then an Associated Press photographer, which since has been transformed into a gigantic Marine memorial on the Potomac's banks in Washington.

Why was that barren island worth so many lives, so many injuries?

Planes from U.S. heavy bomber groups on Saipan, Tinian and Guam needed fighter cover to beat off Japanese planes as they roared over Tokyo, Yokohama and other industrial spots.

Figthers couldn't fly the round-trip distance from the bomber bases. They could fly to Japan and back from Iwo. And the big bombers needed a spot to land if damaged. Crippled B29s, torn by Japanese antiaircraft fire, began landing on Iwo before the battle for the island ended.

And strangely enough in view of today's tension in the Far East, if it were not for the decision that the air assaults were of paramount importance in ending World War II, the men of Iwo Jima would have taken another island. They were destined, until strategy prompted a change in plans, to invade Formosa.

Ohio's Waterways Growing, But Flood Projects Needed

COLUMBUS (AP)—Col. J. L. Person says Ohio's water highways, which have been humming with increased activity in recent years, will be busier than ever with the completion of projects planned or now underway.

Person, Ohio river division engineer at Cincinnati, told the Ohio Water Clinic Conference:

"The effect of water-borne commerce on the economy of Ohio will be magnified" by completion of the St. Lawrence Seaway.

Turning to flood control, Col. Person said reservoirs and other flood control devices prevented more than $140 million in damage from last October's Ohio River floods, when "Hurricane Hazel" dropped enough water on the upper Ohio Valley to have produced, without our completed projects, the third highest flood of record in the Pittsburgh area."

The prevention of damage in this one flood threat more than paid for the flood control projects that did the work, Person declared.

OTHER FLOOD projects that have more than paid for themselves in value of property damage prevented are Berlin and Mosquito Creek reservoirs in the Mahoning Basin, said Person.

The most nearly completed tributary basin "from the viewpoint of reservoir control" is the Muskingum Valley.

"Local protection projects have been completed at Wellsville, Massillon, Newark, Ironton, Portsmouth, New Boston and Cincinnati," said Person. "In the relatively short time that they have been in operation, all have prevented substantial damages and some of them have already produced benefits nearly equal to their original cost."

He termed the Scioto Basin one of the unsolved flood control problems in Ohio. "Changing economic conditions since the adoption of the authorized plan have resulted in a questionable economic balance in the case of the Big Darby, Deer Creek, Paint Creek, and Rocky Fork reservoirs."

"We have authority for a review study of the problem, and will proceed with it as soon as the availability of funds permits."

Red Cross Gears Campaign Forces

Solicitors Begin Work Feb. 28; District's Goal Set At $10,910

Preparations for the 1955 Red Cross Fund Drive in Pickaway County neared completion Saturday as drive chairmen from 15 townships and the city of Circleville coordinated their final instructions.

Sheriff Charles H. Radcliff, drive chairman, presided at a meeting earlier this week to outline objectives for the volunteer workers. He discussed the problems that may arise and stressed the importance of a coordinated effort by all chairmen and their solicitors.

Radcliff was assisted by William Ammer, chairman of the Pickaway County Red Cross, and E. P. Zimmerman, Red Cross field representative.

On Monday, February 28, nearly 750 solicitors will begin to carry out their assignments throughout the county. The local goal this year is $10,910.

Forty-four percent of this total will be held by the Red Cross as Pickaway County's share of national and international funds.

Financial assistance to servicemen, veterans and their dependents amounted to $12.5 million last year.

Across the nation, 318 relief operations following disasters in 1954 were carried out by methods perfected in 73 years of relief work in thousands of catastrophes. Safety services, volunteer services, foreign disaster aid, nursing service, and the Junior Red Cross, are other vital parts of the American Red Cross.

Locally, the blood program is one of the best known services of the Red Cross. On the national scale, nearly three million pints of blood were collected for civilian and national defense use last year.

Within the next few days, township and city chairmen for the fund drive will designate the solicitors for their areas. To acquaint everyone with the chairman in each township and city area, and the goals to be attained, Radcliff released names and figures.

The list, showing areas, goals and chairmen follows:

Walnut Township, $500, J. Arthur Sark; Washington, $300, Mrs. Roy Strawser; Pickaway, $425, Mrs. Willard England; Deer Creek, $300, Mrs. Ted Corcoran; Williamsport, $200, Mrs. William Heiskell, Jr.; Ashville, $650, Mrs. Lowell Cooper, (Civic Club assisting); Scioto, $425, James Sealock; Jackson, $350, Mrs. Marvene Rhodes; Perry, $350, Mrs. Evans; New Holland, $350, William Fricee; Hay; Madison, $350, Mrs. James Picking; Muhlenburg, $150, Frank Beatty; Circleville, $250, Mrs. Forest Short; Monroe, $300, Mrs. Ethel Furniss; Circleville City, North, $1,300, Mrs. Carl Leist; Circleville City, South, $1,150, Mrs. Eleanor Dawson.

Township and area chairmen will meet next week with their solicitors for a final briefing and distribution of fund drive materials. A listing of solicitors will be available at that time.

Charles Sawyer Wins In Lawsuit

SPRINGFIELD (AP)—Judge Huber A. Beery of Sidney, serving in Clark County by assignment, has dismissed a suit against the Radio Voice of Springfield, Inc.

The suit, filed by Philip L. Bradstock, Piqua, and 12 other minority stockholders several years ago, asked a judgment of $112,080 and additional sums to be discovered by an audit.

Judge Beery overruled the contention of the minority stockholders that Charles Sawyer, president and treasurer of the corporation, and his wife took excessive salaries from the firm. Sawyer is in charge of the corporation which operates radio station WIZE in Springfield.

Lock Of Her Hair Gives Him Divorce

LOS ANGELES (AP)—Mrs. Maria Carletti gave a lock of her hair to her husband. But it put an end to their marriage of six years.

Sisto Carletti, 59, testified in getting a divorce yesterday that Maria, 67, chopped up the lock into tiny particles and mixed it with his smoking tobacco.

The combination, he said, made him violently ill. He charged cruelty. The judge agreed.

15 Communist Armed Junks Reported Sunk

Chiang Believes Enemy Building For Strike Against Nanchishan Isle

TAIPEI, Formosa (AP)—Chinese Nationalist pilots reported sinking 15 motorized armed Communist junks and damaging five others today in the second day of heavy air and surface strikes against the Reds.

The air force said its planes caught the Communist craft near the Taishan Islands, 120 miles northwest of Formosa, which the Reds apparently are trying to build up. Twenty-three of the ships were sighted.

The air force said the strike was made in the same area where the Nationalist air force and navy claimed to have sunk 21 Red ships and a submarine yesterday.

Tonight's communique said all planes returned safely. There was no mention of any opposition by Chinese Communist planes.

Another communique reported Nationalist planes heavily bombed installations on the Taishans last night and possibly destroyed one warship. It apparently was the same claim made in a late communique yesterday.

The Reds appeared to be making an intensive effort to build up on the Taishans which are within striking range of Nationalist positions on Nanchishan Island.

Newspapers reported earlier that Chinese Communist troops and supply ships sunk yesterday in Nationalist China's biggest naval victory radioed for air cover, but no Red planes appeared.

THE NATIONALISTS claimed 21 ships and a submarine sunk in the blazing action near the Taishan Islands, 120 miles northwest of Formosa and 15 miles from the Red mainland—within easy range of Communist air bases.

In reporting the action Friday the Nationalist Defense Ministry made no mention of Red fighters challenging Nationalist planes and surface craft which carried on the daylong attack.

Advance intelligence of the Reds' troop and supply movements set up the Nationalist strike in the Formosa Strait Friday.

The Nationalists exulted in a victory which lifted morale from the low caused by last week's withdrawal from the Tachen Islands.

Nationalist intelligence knew a day in advance that a 14-ship convoy would move troops and supplies southward from Wenchow Bay on Friday.

That gave Chiang Kai-shek's navy time to move its northern (Continued on Page Two)

2 Ohioans Aboard Missing Bomber

ANCHORAGE, Alaska (AP)—Hope was slight today as scores of search planes continued to seek a Navy patrol bomber and the 11 men it carried when it disappeared only a few miles from here Thursday night.

The Navy in Washington last night announced the following Ohioans were among those aboard:

Ensign Morris P. Brown of Oxford, and aviation electronics technician Charles Trostel of Troy.

Marines Made Landing On Iwo Jima 10 Years Ago Today

By The Associated Press

Slowly and carefully, the young Marine private stacked his battle gear at his feet—carbine, canteen, rations, gas mask, canteen, canteen.

Finally he took off his helmet and dropped to his knees on the rough deck in the bow of the landing craft.

His lips began to move silently. Buddies who not long before had been chanting bawdy songs glanced toward him, then wordlessly moved forward to form a circle enclosing his spot of private prayer.

In the stern of the landing craft another Marine retched violently and painfully—seasickness, maybe fear.

They were going in—in to what was expected to be, and was, one of the bloodiest beachheads in Marine Corps history—Iwo Jima.

It was a bright sunny morning, and light breezes barely rippled the water that Feb. 19, 10 years ago.

But the sky was filled with tiny clouds, wisps of smoke tossed high by incessant bombardment, by occasional hits of return fire from the pork-chop-shaped 44-square-mile island where thousands of men were soon to die.

Then it was H Hour. Landing craft stopped circling and wallowed ahead toward the beach 30 minutes away.

Louder and louder sounded the crash of shells as Navy bombardment continued to soften up the island and its Japanese defenders.

The buoy struck the beach. The landing ramp dropped.

The Marines leaped out on the run but were slowed immediately to a plodding walk by the volcanic ash and sand beach.

To the left was Mt. Suribachi, honeycombed with caves used for gun emplacements. To the right was high ground where the Japanese had set up their heaviest defenses and where, at the end, they made their last stand.

From each end of the island, mortar shells crashed onto the beach, tearing giant holes in the yielding sand.

Then the sand became an aid rather than hindrance. Quickly and almost simultaneously, it seemed, the Marines learned that emergency shelters could be scooped out almost effortlessly by sitting down and kicking the sand away.

But many died; more were wounded.

By the end of that bloody D day, one in every 12 of the 30,000 men who swarmed onto the beach was dead, wounded or missing.

And those casualties—2,420 on the first day, including 505 killed—were merely an indication of what was to come. By the end of the campaign casualties had climbed past 25,000—including more than 5,500 dead—among the invading Marines. Another 2,798 men of supporting naval units were killed or wounded.

The Japanese casualties? They can only be estimated. There were better than 20,000 Japanese on the island—none civilians. Only a few more than a thousand were taken prisoner.

Mt. Suribachi had been ticked long in advance of the invasion for prompt conquest. It was known to be filled to overflowing with gun emplacements zeroed in on landing beaches and airfields.

The 28th Marine Regiment slammed onto the beach closest to its base. Promptly the 28th swung southward, their objective to silence those many guns, take Mt. Suribachi.

Pounded by fire every inch of the way they moved steadily ahead. Four days later with 895 casualties—510 dead—counted in the fight for Suribachi, the flag was raised on its crest and its guns were stilled.

That flag raising provided the setting for the photograph by Joe Rosenthal, then an Associated Press photographer, which since has been transformed into a gigantic Marine memorial on the Potomac's banks in Washington.

Why was that barren island worth so many lives, so many injuries?

Planes from U.S. heavy bomber groups on Saipan, Tinian and Guam needed fighter cover to beat off Japanese planes as they roared over Tokyo, Yokohama and other industrial spots.

Fighters couldn't fly the round-trip distance from the bomber bases. They could fly to Japan and back from Iwo. And the big bombers needed a spot to land if damaged. Crippled B29s, torn by Japanese anti-aircraft fire, began landing on Iwo before the battle for the island ended.

And strangely enough in view of today's tension in the Far East, if it were not for the decision that the air assaults were of paramount importance in ending World War II, the men of Iwo Jima would have taken another island. They were destined, until strategy prompted a change in plans, to invade Formosa.

Thirty-one passengers in another Greyhound bus which stalled in drifts near the Continental Divide in central Wyoming were rescued yesterday.

Six men reported missing in a station wagon between Rock Springs, Wyo., and Craig, Colo., also were found safe early today.

Many communities lay isolated in waist-deep drifts and numbing cold after 24 hours of continuous snowfall.

Every north-south road in Wyoming was closed to traffic late yesterday. Drifts and winds of gale velocity trapped scores of motorists on open highways, and at least seven snowblades thundered down onto roads in mountainous southwest Colorado.

Six other persons marooned near Newcastle, Wyo., also were rescued at dusk yesterday.

Four of the storm's victims died in auto accidents attributed to slick highways. Two were killed in Montana, and one each in Wyoming and Colorado.

The fifth victim was a 79-year-old retired miner who collapsed and died in Denver after shoveling snow.

Adding to the tragedy list, fire killed a 2-year-old child at Wolf Point, Mont., and left homeless a Riverton, Wyo., farm family of seven.

2 Telephone Aides Held For Wiretap

New York Officials Say Pair Had Ear To Vital City Exchange

NEW YORK (AP)—Two telephone company workers, already suspended from their jobs, were arrested today after a district attorney's investigation of an undercover wiretap center.

The eavesdropping setup, discovered hidden in a Manhattan apartment, was believed to have many important telephones within its range and to afford opportunities for widespread blackmail and security leaks.

After lengthy questioning that ran far into early morning hours, District Atty. Frank S. Hogan ordered the arrest of Carl E. Ruh, 30, of the Bronx, and Walter Asmann, 29, of South Jamaica, Queens. They later were booked on wiretapping charges.

Ruh was a phone tester and Asmann made connections between subscribers' phones and central exchanges. Both men are married.

The district attorney's office, in announcing the arrest orders, gave no details on the wiretap setup or the role the two men played in it.

EARLIER HOGAN said he had determined the operation was local and only a few phones within its range had been tapped. He said he would present the facts Monday to a grand jury which "will ascertain whether there was any violation of the law."

From persons questioned thus far, Hogan said, "we have ascertained . . . that the operation was local in nature."

"Our information is that only one telephone exchange is involved and that over a period of five months interceptions were made on about 15 telephone numbers, six at a time," he continued.

Earlier Police Commissioner Francis W. H. Adams said the center was capable of tuning in on all the phones of six exchanges.

These covered the midtown Eastside section of Manhattan—including the U. N., many foreign consulates, important business offices and a rich residential area.

The disclosure yesterday brought immediate demands for investigation by federal agencies.

Sen. Irving M. Ives (R-NY) said "a grave danger of security leaks" was indicated. He urged a congressional investigation and said reports he had received suggested there was a chance of eavesdropping on interstate conversations.

Dumping Garbage On County Road Costs Columbusite

A Columbus man got an expensive lesson in Circleville city court Friday on how not to dump garbage.

John R. Bartlett was fined $25 and costs and sentenced to 30 days in jail for "unlawfully disposing of garbage, cans, paper and other refuse on the Harrisburg-Fairfield Rd. (Route 762) in Madison Twp." The 30 days was suspended and Bartlett put on probation for that period of time.

Bartlett was arrested by Deputy Sheriff Carl Radcliff. His license number was noted and reported here when Bartlett allegedly dumped his garbage off the road.

Deputy Radcliff pointed out that this is but one of many violators who continue to dump garbage and refuse on Pickaway County roads. He asked the assistance of all residents in reporting violators.

"This is the only way we can stop it," he added. "It has been going on too long. But we need the public's help."

Of some six hundred published church hymns, four are way out in front in popularity. They are, in order of preference, "Abide With Me"; "Nearer, My God to Thee"; "Lead, Kindly Light"; and "Rock of Ages".

Juvenile Delinquency Fails To Worry Georgia School

By DOROTHY ROE
AP Women's Editor

Psychologists and sociologists concerned with the problems of juvenile delinquency should spend an hour with Inez Henry, secretary of the Berry Schools, in the Blue Ridge foothills near Rome, Ga.

"We don't know what that word means," says brisk, bright-eyed Mrs. Henry. "Our boys and girls are too busy to get in trouble."

More than 1,000 mountain boys and girls work and study at this unique school. It was founded in 1902 by Martha Berry, first for boys and later for girls from remote mountain sections in Georgia, Tennessee, North Carolina and Alabama.

These boys and girls get their learning not only from books but also from practical work on one of the world's most beautiful campuses—30,000 acres of farmland and pine forests with stately Gothic stone buildings that have been built and furnished by the students themselves.

fleet based at Keelung into position to pounce on the Red Chinese flotilla. Normally this fleet would include a half dozen destroyers along with destroyer escorts and converted minesweepers.

At dawn Friday the Nationalist warships were cruising the choppy East China Sea out of sight of the mainland but in position to intercept the Red flotilla.

THE EIGHT Communist landing ships, guarded by two destroyer escorts and four gunboats, moved into sight and the action began about 8 a. m.

By 9 a. m., the Nationalist navy said, it had sunk at least seven landing ships and possibly three gunboats.

The surviving Red craft fled toward nearby harbors with the Nationalist fighter-bombers roared out from Formosa to join in the action. Adm. Lee Yu-hai, who brought his victorious fleet back to Keelung today, estimated Red casualties were in excess of 1,000 dead.

What appears to have been another convoy, possibly unaware of the disastrous blow to the first, moved into the area and the Nationalist air force pounced on it. The air force claimed its warplanes sank a landing craft, two gunboats and eight armed motorized junks.

Pilots hunting for targets said they saw a submarine surface about 3:50 p. m. and scored direct hits. They reported it "sank into the sea."

Court Studies Rap Against Secret Trial

CLEVELAND (AP)—An appellate court, asked by three Cleveland daily newspapers to stop a common pleas judge from keeping reporters out of a trial, has deferred decision in the case.

After a day-long hearing yesterday, the court of appeals granted counsel for Common Pleas Judge Parker Fulton time to submit legal citations, before taking the case under advisement.

Judge Fulton ordered spectators and reporters out of his courtroom last Feb. 11, during testimony of a 21-year-old woman in the trial of three persons accused of leading her into prostitution. The defendants, who signed waivers of their rights to a public trial, were later convicted.

The newspapers, the News, Plain Dealer and Press, asked the appeals court to issue a writ of prohibition against Judge Fulton.

Attorneys for the newspapers contend the judge's action violates constitutional rights of both the press and the public.

The judge's lawyers said that since defendants have the right to a public trial, the right can be waived.

Attorneys for the newspapers argued that papers and the public have the right "to know what is going on in their courts," even though some spectators may be barred from a courtroom under special circumstances.

The Constitution guarantees the right to a public trial, but it does not follow that the accused has a corresponding right to a secret trial, the lawyers said.

Friends may call in the funeral home after 4 p. m. Saturday.

Winds Delay Big Nuclear Test In West

LAS VEGAS, Nev. (AP)—A nuclear detonation scheduled at dawn was postponed early today by scientists because of continuing high winds. Strong gusts caused a three-day delay in opening the spring atomic test series.

A weather briefing at 5 a. m. EST disclosed that a straight north wind was blowing 30 to 35 mph with gusts up to 40 mph.

A detonation under those wind conditions, the test chiefs said, would have forced the evacuation of the test control point, of Camp Mercury, the AEC support camp, and of Camp Desert Rock, the Army headquarters, because of the danger of radioactivity.

Another weather huddle was scheduled for this afternoon to discuss a Sunday shot. But meteorologists said the weather outlook is not good.

Today's shot was to have been the 500-foot tower explosion originally scheduled to open the series last Tuesday. About 450 troops were scheduled to carry out maneuvers after taking the impact of the blast in trenches 4,000 yards from the tower. Including observers, perhaps 1,100 men were to have taken up trench positions.

The same group watched yesterday's show from News Bn. eight miles from a small but beautifully placed above Yucca Flat by a B36 from Kirtland Air Force Base, N. M.

Dean Dugger's Talk Highlight For Lutherans

A talk by Dean Dugger, Ohio State's All-American football star, highlighted the annual Father-and-Son Banquet held by the Trinity Lutheran Brotherhood.

The star Buckeye end discussed various phases of the grid game and answered many questions from the audience. A film of last Fall's OSU-Illinois game was shown in connection with his talk.

Approximately 160 members and guests gathered at Trinity Lutheran parish house for the big program. The dinner was served by a committee directed by Jim Mowery.

Special music for the evening was furnished by Truman Eberly, Circleville High School music director, and members of the famed CHS band.

AFTER THE gathering opened with a religious hymn and spiritual reading, Dugger's talk became the feature of the program. He described many of the plays and signals used by the OSU grid machine, and recalled some of his memories from 12 years of football play.

In reply to a question, Dugger said he has two brothers who are also athletically inclined, but their father rarely participated in sports. At the same time, the football star explained, his father was always interested in the sports activity of his sons.

Trinity Lutheran's Father-and-Son Banquet is a traditional highlight of this district's series of dinners each Fall.

Insanity Claimed By Accused Killer

MOUNT VERNON (AP)—Glenn Hoffer, 24, Mount Vernon, has pleaded innocent by reason of insanity on charges of first degree murder in the fatal shooting of his mother-in-law.

Kansas and the 20s into northwest Texas. Coldest spot was Glasgow, Mont., with 12 below.

Thirty-one passengers in another Greyhound bus which stalled in drifts near the Continental Divide in central Wyoming were rescued yesterday.

Six men reported missing in a station wagon between Rock Springs, Wyo., and Craig, Colo., also were found safe early today.

Many communities lay isolated in waist-deep drifts and numbing cold after 24 hours of continuous snowfall.

Every north-south road in Wyoming was closed to traffic late yesterday. Drifts and winds of gale velocity trapped scores of motorists on open highways, and at least seven snowblades thundered down onto roads in mountainous southwest Colorado.

Six other persons marooned near Newcastle, Wyo., also were rescued at dusk yesterday.

Four of the storm's victims died in auto accidents attributed to slick highways. Two were killed in Montana, and one each in Wyoming and Colorado.

The fifth victim was a 79-year-old retired miner who collapsed and died in Denver after shoveling snow.

Adding to the tragedy list, fire killed a 2-year-old child at Wolf Point, Mont., and left homeless a Riverton, Wyo., farm family of seven.

Mrs. Bryan Russell of Circleville Route 3 has received word that her daughter and husband, Pfc. and Mrs. Wayne F. Carter, are to leave for Southampton March 30 and will arrive in New York April 6.

Following a 15-day leave for the husband, they will be stationed in Georgia.

Mrs. Carter, the former Janet Russell, and her husband expect to spend his leave in Circleville with their parents, Mr. and Mrs. Russell and Mr. and Mrs. Earl Carter of Wayne Township.

Army Pvt. Donald L. Hildenbrand, of Williamsport Route 1, recently arrived in Japan and is now a member of the 8197th Army Unit.

Private Hildenbrand, a 1953 graduate of Monroe Township High School at Mount Sterling, was a press operator for Lincoln Plastics at Circleville before entering the Army in August 1954.

2 Telephone Aides Held For Wiretap

New York Officials Say Pair Had Ear To Vital City Exchange

NEW YORK (AP)—Two telephone company workers, already suspended from their jobs, were arrested today after a district attorney's investigation of an undercover wiretap center.

The eavesdropping setup, discovered hidden in a Manhattan apartment, was believed to have many important telephones within its range and to afford opportunities for widespread black-mail and security leaks.

After lengthy questioning that ran far into early morning hours, District Atty. Frank S. Hogan ordered the arrest of Carl E. Ruh, 30, of the Bronx, and Walter Asmann, 29, of South Jamaica, Queens. They later were booked on wiretapping charges.

Ruh was a phone taster and Asmann made connections between subscribers' phones and central exchanges. Both men are married.

The district attorney's office, in announcing the arrest orders, gave no details on the wiretap setup or the role the two men played in it.

EARLIER HOGAN said he had determined the operation was local and only a few phones within its range had been tapped. He said he would present the facts Monday to a grand jury which "will ascertain whether there was any violation of the law."

From persons questioned thus far, Hogan said, "we have ascertained . . . that the operation was local in nature."

"Our information is that only one telephone exchange is involved and that over a period of five months interceptions were made on about 15 telephone numbers, six at a time," he continued.

Earlier, Police Commissioner Francis W. H. Adams said the center was capable of tuning in on all the phones of six exchanges. These covered the midtown Eastside section of Manhattan including the U. N., many foreign consulates, important business offices and a rich residential area.

The disclosure yesterday brought immediate demands for investigation by federal agencies.

Sen. Irving M. Ives (R-NY) said "a grave danger of security leaks" was indicated. He urged a congressional investigation and said reports he had received suggested there was a chance of eavesdropping on interstate conversations.

Later Sen. John L. McClellan

dumped garbage on County Road Costs Columbusite

A Columbus man got an expensive lesson in Circleville city court Friday on how not to dump garbage.

John R. Bartlett was fined $25 and costs and sentenced to 30 days in jail for "unlawfully disposing of garbage, cans, paper and other refuse on the Harrisburg-Fairfield Rd. (Route 762) in Madison Twp."

The 30 days was suspended and Bartlett put on probation for that period of time.

Bartlett was arrested by Deputy Sheriff Carl Radcliff. His license number was noted and reported here when Bartlett allegedly dumped his garbage off the road.

Deputy Radcliff pointed out that this is but one of many violators who continue to dump garbage and refuse on Pickaway County roads. He asked the assistance of all residents in reporting violators.

"This is the only way we can stop it," he added. "It has been going on too long. But we need the public's help."

Of some six hundred published church hymns, four are way out in front in popularity. They are, in order of preference, "Abide With Me"; "Nearer, My God to Thee"; "Lead, Kindly Light"; and "Rock of Ages".

Juvenile Delinquency Fails To Worry Georgia School

By DOROTHY ROE
AP Women's Editor

Psychologists and sociologists concerned with the problems of juvenile delinquency should spend an hour with Inez Henry, secretary of the Berry Schools, in the Blue Ridge foothills near Rome, Ga.

"We don't know what that word means," says brisk, bright-eyed Mrs. Henry. "Our boys and girls are too busy to get in trouble."

More than 1,000 mountain boys and girls work and study at this unique school. It was founded in 1902 by Martha Berry, first for boys and later for girls from remote mountain sections in Georgia, Tennessee, North Carolina and Alabama.

These boys and girls get their learning not only from books but also from practical work on one of the world's most beautiful campuses—30,000 acres of farmland and pine forests with stately Gothic stone buildings that have been built and furnished by the students themselves.

(D-Ark) announced his Senate Investigations subcommittee was already checking reports that phones of government officials in Washington were being tapped. The inquiry might be extended to include the New York operation, he added, but declined further comment.

No city youngster can go to the Berry Schools, and no farm youths are accepted if they can afford tuition at other colleges. The students work two days a week and attend classes for four days. There is no paid labor. Students do all the work. The boys cut timber, make bricks, erect buildings, work on the school farm or tend the livestock. The girls cook and serve meals, work in the laundry and canning plant, weave in the loom shop, sew and do secretarial work in the school offices.

The school farm has 1,000 acres under cultivation, another 2,000 in pasture, 300 acres in fruit trees, 20 acres of irrigated garden. It has 800 head of cattle, 2,000 white ducks, 7,000 chickens, 10,000 peach trees. Says Mrs. Henry: "I'm sure these are the best fed students in the world."

The Berry Schools are supported by private contributions, in addition to the income from the farm and timber lands.

15 Communist Armed Junks Reported Sunk

fleet based at Keelung into position to pounce on the Red Chinese flotilla. Normally this fleet would include a half dozen destroyers along with destroyer escorts and converted minesweepers.

At dawn Friday the Nationalist warships were cruising the choppy East China Sea out of sight of the mainland but in position to intercept the Red flotilla.

THE EIGHT Communist landing ships, guarded by two destroyer escorts and four gunboats, moved into sight and the action began about 8 a. m.

By 9 a. m., the Nationalist navy said, it had sunk at least seven landing ships and possibly three gunboats.

The surviving Red craft fled toward nearby harbors with the Nationalist warships in pursuit. Nationalist fighter-bombers roared out from Formosa to join in the action. Adm. Lee Yu-hai, who brought his victorious fleet back to Keelung today, estimated Red casualties were in excess of 1,000 dead.

What appears to have been another convoy, possibly unaware of the disastrous blow to the first, moved into the area and the Nationalist air force pounced on it. The air force claimed its warplanes sank a landing craft, two gunboats and eight armed motorized junks.

Pilots hunting for targets said they saw a submarine surface about 3:50 p. m. and scored direct hits. They reported it "sank into the sea."

Court Studies Rap Against Secret Trial

CLEVELAND (AP)—An appellate court, asked by three Cleveland daily newspapers to stop a common pleas judge from keeping reporters out of a trial, has deferred decision in the case.

After a day-long hearing yesterday, the court of appeals granted counsel for Common Pleas Judge Parker Fulton time to submit legal citations, before taking the case under advisement.

Judge Fulton ordered spectators and reporters out of his courtroom last Feb. 11, during testimony of a 21-year-old woman in the trial of three persons accused of leading her into prostitution. The defendants, who signed waivers of their rights to a public trial, were later convicted.

The newspapers, the News, Plain Dealer and Press, asked the appeals court to issue a writ of prohibition against Judge Fulton. Attorneys for the newspapers contend the judge's action violates constitutional rights of both the press and the public.

The judge's lawyers said that since defendants have the right to a public trial, the right can be waived.

Attorneys for the newspapers argued that papers and the public have the right "to know what is going on in their courts," even though some spectators may be barred from a courtroom under special circumstances.

The Constitution guarantees the right to a public trial, but it does not follow that the accused has a corresponding right to a secret trial, the lawyers said.

Mrs. Daisy Watson of 331 Huston St. was released Saturday from Berger Hospital, where she was a medical patient.

DEATHS AND FUNERALS

RICHARD LEE GIFFIN

Two-day old Richard Lee Giffin died at 7 a. m. Saturday at the home of his parents, Floyd and Charlotte Rutter Giffin, 151 Highland Ave. in Circleville.

Survivors, besides his parents, include: seven brothers and sisters and grandparents, George and Mary Rutter, of Circleville. Defenbaugh Funeral Home is in charge of funeral arrangements.

DONALD WHITE

Donald W. White, who formerly operated the local distribution branch of Sinclair Oil in Circleville, died Saturday morning in Dayton Veterans' Hospital.

While in Circleville he lived on E. Main St.

JAMES LUNSFORD

James W. Lunsford of Rockbridge Route 1 died Wednesday in Veterans Hospital, Dayton.

Mr. Lunsford, a Veteran of World War I, was born Feb. 16, 1887 in Hocking County, a son of George and Julia Anderson Lunsford.

He was preceded in death by his wife, Cora Voltz Lunsford. Surviving him are a sister, Mrs. Rose Fauble of Lancaster, and several nieces and nephews.

Funeral services will be held at 2:30 p. m. Sunday in the Fairview Methodist church near Rockbridge. Burial will be in the Fairview Cemetery by direction of the Defenbaugh Funeral Home.

Friends may call in the funeral home after 5 p. m. Saturday.

EARL LUTZ

Funeral services for Earl Lutz, who died Friday in Berger Hospital, will be held at 1:30 p. m. Monday in the Church of the Nazarene, instead of in the Defenbaugh Funeral Home, as was previously announced.

The Rev. Dale Fruehling will officiate. Burial will be in Forest Cemetery by direction of the Defenbaugh Funeral Home.

Friends may call in the funeral home after 4 p. m. Saturday.

Winds Delay Big Nuclear Test In West

LAS VEGAS, Nev. (AP)—A nuclear detonation scheduled at dawn was postponed early today by scientists because of continuing high winds. Strong gusts caused a three-day delay in opening the spring atomic test series.

A weather briefing at 5 a. m. EST disclosed that a straight north wind was blowing 30 to 35 mph with gusts up to 40 mph.

A detonation under those wind conditions, the test chiefs said, would have forced the evacuation of the test control point, of Camp Mercury, the AEC support camp, and of Camp Desert Rock, the Army headquarters, because of the danger of radioactivity.

Another weather huddle was scheduled for this afternoon to discuss a Sunday shot. But meteorologists said the weather outlook is not good.

Today's shot was to have been the 500-foot tower explosion originally scheduled to open the series last Tuesday. About 450 troops were scheduled to carry out maneuvers after taking the impact of the blast in trenches 4,000 yards from the tower. Including observers, perhaps 1,100 men were to have taken up trench positions.

The same group watched yesterday's show from News Nob, eight miles from a small burst beautifully placed above Yucca Flat by a B36 from Kirtland Air Force Base, N. M.

Dean Dugger's Talk Highlight For Lutherans

A talk by Dean Dugger, Ohio State's All-American football star, highlighted the annual Father-And-Son Banquet held by the Trinity Lutheran Brotherhood.

The star Buckeye end discussed various phases of the grid game and answered many questions from the audience. A film of last Fall's OSU-Illinois game was shown in connection with his talk.

Approximately 160 members and guests gathered at Trinity Lutheran parish house for the big program. The dinner was served by a committee directed by Jim Mowery.

Special music for the evening was furnished by Truman Eberly, Circleville High School music director, and members of the famed CHS band.

AFTER THE gathering opened with a religious hymn and spiritual reading, Dugger's talk became the feature of the program. He described many of the plays and signals used by the OSU grid machine, and recalled some of his memories from 12 years of football play.

In reply to a question, Dugger said he has two brothers who are also athletically inclined, but their father rarely participated in sports. At the same time, the football star explained, his father was always interested in the sports activity of his sons.

Trinity Lutheran's Father-And-Son Banquet is a traditional highlight of this district's series of dinners each Fall.

Insanity Claimed By Accused Killer

MOUNT VERNON (AP)—Glenn Hoffer, 24, Mount Vernon, has pleaded innocent by reason of insanity on charges of first degree murder in the fatal shooting of his mother-in-law.

The Korean War veteran at his arraignment here yesterday also entered a plea of innocent to a charge of shooting his father-in-law with intent to kill.

Hoffer was indicted Jan. 31 by a special grand jury in the death of Mrs. Sheilan Hamon, 38, and the shooting of her husband, Starling, 41. Hoffer was estranged from his wife, Truliah, who was working in Mansfield at the time of the killing.

Manila Pact OK'd By 8 Nations

In 1,900 communities, local councils of church women have assumed the responsibility for promotion of the day's spiritual theme. And many interdenominational prayer and study groups are being formed to carry on the work after the observance.

St. Philip's Episcopal Church in Circleville will be the host church for this year's service in Pickaway County. The service will be held next Friday at 2 p. m.

Purpose of the World Day of Prayer is to unite all Christians in a bond of prayer and to make an offering for Christian missions at home and abroad.

The sponsor in this country is the General Department of the United Church Women of the National Council of Churches of Christ in America.

President Eisenhower has stressed the need of spiritual aims if the world is to find its way out of recurrent tensions.

Theme of worship will be "Abide in Me", beseeching Christians everywhere to abide in Him and in fellowship with one another. Praises will go forth from varied places of worship and in many tongues, but with one Christian hope for brotherhood and peace.

The following women from local churches will take part in this ecumenical service:

Presbyterian Church, Mrs. David Yates; Methodist Church, Mrs. Paul Johnson; Baptist Church, Mrs. Pauline Jones; Evangelical United Brethren Church, Mrs. E. Richardson; Evangelical Church, Mrs. A. Goeller; Gospel Center, Mrs. Ruth George; St. Philip's Church, Mrs. Jack C. Bennett.

A tea following the service will be held in the parish house of St. Philip's Church. A cordial invitation is extended to the public to join in the service and the tea.

Letter Of Apostle Background For Methodist Sermon

In the worship services at First Methodist Church Sunday, the Rev. Charles D. Reed will use as his sermon subject "Christ Loved the Church".

The scriptural background for this sermon will be from the Apostle Paul's letter to the Ephesians fifth chapter verses 21 through 33.

The junior choir under the direction of Mrs. Vaden Couch, will sing, "The Sunlight of the Lord", by Keating, in the 8:30 a. m. service. The senior choir, under the direction of Mrs. Harold Defenbaugh, will sing, "Peace I Leave With You", by Roberts, featuring Gene Cronenwett as soloist.

Mrs. Lillian Avis, by special request will sing, "Hold Thou My Hand", by Briggs. The organist, Mrs. Ervin Leist, will use as her organ prelude "Large", by Handel, and the offertory "Nocturne", from Mid-Summer Night's Dream, by Mendelssohn. Visitors will find a cordial welcome at the First Methodist Church.

Illustrated Talk To Be Given To St. Joseph's Parish

The Rev. Fr. Clement Faistle will present an illustrated talk on Korea Sunday evening to the members of St. Joseph's Catholic Church.

The address by the Rev. Fr. Faistle, who was a paratroop chaplain during World War II and the Korean conflict, will be preceded by a carry-in dinner, held in the church social rooms.

All members of the parish are invited to enjoy the fellowship of the dinner and to hear the address by the Rev. Fr. Faistle. The Altar Society will serve as hostesses for the dinner. They will be assisted by the members of the Holy Name Society.

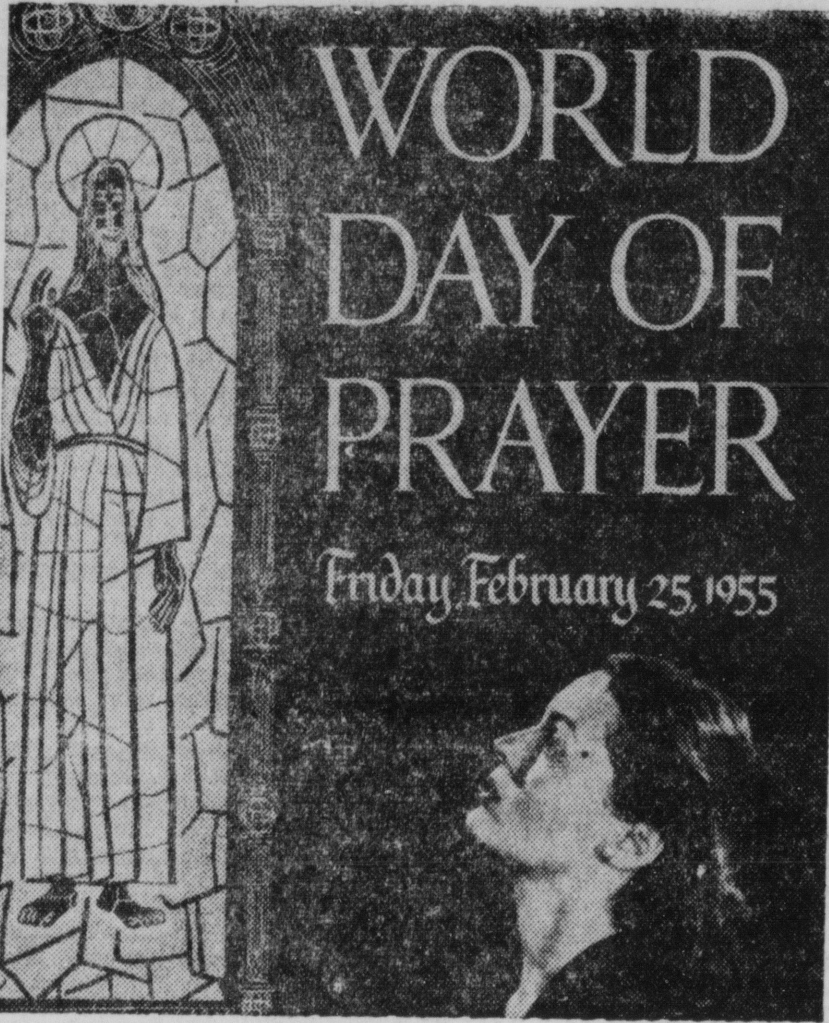

Benediction to the Most Blessed Sacrament will be held at 4:30 p. m. Sunday.

Ashes will be distributed Wednesday, which is the beginning of Lent. Parishioners are reminded to observe the laws of Lenten fast and abstinence.

With similar encouragement from his parents, and with some fundamental religious training, this young man will learn some far more useful truths about souls. He will learn, for instance, that God's highest creature—Man—lives in a moral environment just as hostile to his survival as that ocean floor, and that Man depends for his protection not on any outer armor, but on the inner being which God has taught him to call his soul.

And when our young man compares shells and souls he will discover that, just as God provides many of his lesser creatures with the means of building up and strengthening their shells, he provides Man with the Church, the Bible, and the Gift of Prayer to enable him to strengthen his soul.

THE CHURCH FOR ALL . . . ALL FOR THE CHURCH

The Church is the greatest factor on earth for the building of character and good citizenship. It is a storehouse of spiritual values. Without a strong Church, neither democracy nor civilization can survive. There are four sound reasons why every person should attend services regularly and support the Church. They are: (1) For his own sake. (2) For his children's sake. (3) For the sake of his community and nation. (4) For the sake of the Church itself, which needs his moral and material support. Plan to go to church regularly and read your Bible daily.

THE CHURCH FOR ALL . . . ALL FOR THE CHURCH

The Church is the greatest factor on earth for the building of character and good citizenship. It is a storehouse of spiritual values. Without a strong Church, neither democracy nor civilization can survive. There are four sound reasons why every person should attend services regularly and support the Church. They are: (1) For his own sake, (2) For his children's sake, (3) For the sake of his community and nation, (4) For the sake of the Church itself, which needs his moral and material support. Plan to go to church regularly and read your Bible daily.

WASHINGTON

THE NAME, WASHINGTON, to many persons may have come to mean little more than the national capital, a towering monument, a state on the Pacific coast, a national holiday. With the man, George Washington, receding into shadowy legend, the status of the United States as a young nation seems no longer secure. In fact, there are signs that it is growing old.

At times, in their querulousness and eagerness to guard their material advantages, Americans seem to be slipping. This is a good day for thinking it over. Our veneration of Washington as the Father of His Country might well inspire a reestimate of ourselves as beneficiaries of the patrimony he left us. To this must be traced much of our national estate, wealth, security, power and all the things by which we set store. The paternal stature of Washington may have grown dim but it remains definite for all time. In many ways, it still serves as a measure of individual patriotism.

The deeds of Washington and the winning of American independence are inseparably linked, and his personal strength of character still is the model of true Americanism.

The Father of His Country fought for it with complete self-abnegation and without limit of sacrifice. Much of his time he had to stand alone. His faith made possible the America that is ours today. His clear vision beyond the years, his unwavering self-reliance, his indomitable will—these were his instruments in surveying the new fields of our liberties.

In memory of him, we may well revise our national sense of values, holding fast to those things we know to be good and accepting life's vicissitudes as a challenge to our courage and steadfastness. His devotion to country constitutes a glorious inheritance.

TELLING THE TRUTH

FRANKNESS in telling the public the facts about the fall-out effect of the H-bomb—what happens when there is radioactive dust in the air—is favored by Civil Defense Administrator Peterson. In terms of prevailing winds, the Russians live to the leeward of the western world, and thus should be more vulnerable to windborne perils than Americans. And it is doubtful whether they could learn anything from full disclosure of everything the AEC knows about fall-out. Either they have learned the details from their own experiments, or their spies have taken the secrets to Moscow from this country.

WASHINGTON — "American taxpayers," writes F. L. of Los Angeles "have given more than $50 billion since World War II in foreign military aid, economic assistance and for overseas propaganda. How long will Congress continue this subsidy? When will Washington realize that charity begins at home?"

Answer: Harold E. Stassen's Foreign Operations Administration, which is the successor to the Marshall Plan and the Mutual Security Program, is scheduled to expire on June 30. cate to the State Department supervision over economic and propaganda operations. Stassen hopes to shift to State under this new arrangement.

Many members, however, do not believe that European nations need any more economic support, in view of their remarkable recovery. In fact, they have made such a comeback that, as a result of our contributions, their exports not only threaten our domestic market in many lines, but also cut down our overseas trade. In several instances, foreign firms have underbid American concerns on machinery and equipment to be used in the United States.

Two influential senators on the Senate Appropriations Committee advocate termination of this program—namely, Styles Bridges of New Hampshire and Allen J. Ellender of Louisiana. Both have made personal studies of the situation. Another critic is Rep. John J. Rooney of Brooklyn, who heads the House Appropriations Subcommittee handling foreign funds.

These Days

There was a time in the middle 1930's when it was possible to argue over the future of trade unionism in the United States. In the middle 1950's, that is no longer a moot question. The strong, well-financed, politically powerful trade union has become a form of American life.

About one-quarter of the American labor force, 15 million workers, belongs either to A.F. of L. or C.I.O. unions. To argue that these members are coerced into paying dues and striking against their will is to raise an unsolvable issue. There has been no demand on the part of any large group of workers that unions be abolished.

The new A.F. of L.-C.I.O. will only represent an enormous concentration of manpower but several billion dollars of reserves, much of which is being invested in common stock, often in the particular industry which the union serves.

No matter what has been said of the Taft-Hartley Law, it has run from the 80th Congress to the 84th without change or amendment and has strengthened the unions. The history of trade unionism in the United States will show that the Wagner Law gave the unions a tremendous impetus, the Taft-Hartley Law stabilized union procedure, and while in the political strategy of unionism it was felt necessary to denounce Taft-Hartley, the reason it was not abandoned has been that the unions did very well under it.

They have become enormously rich and if their wealth increases at the present pace, it will not be long before they come into possession of many industries, not by a Socialist revolution but by the normally capitalist process of buying the shares of companies on the Stock Exchange.

The new national labor organization will be more powerful than either international union was during the period of competition between them. But with power must come responsibility. The agreement was correct in excluding racketeers and subversives, but that is not good enough. The racketeers need to be excluded actually and physically. All labor leaders know who they are and what unions they have invaded and which they control.

Similarly, the trade union leaders know who the Communists are and they do not strengthen public confidence by permitting unions expelled for having been led by subversives to return to American trade unionism by the back door of amalgamation with decent unions. That can only mean an open door for infiltration.

That many unions are accepting their responsibilities seriously is apparent in the publication of annual reports. But the democratic method of choosing union leadership is still to be hoped for and will undoubtedly come as the unions become more stabilized and businesslike. It is one thing to manage a union that is struggling for its existence; it is another to run a union whose business operations involve several hundred million dollars—and the members know as much arithmetic as the leaders.

The criticism of the labor union therefore shifts from theorizing as to whether they should exist at all to objections to racketeering, subversion and unstable practices. The course fixed in the middle 1930's of a recognized American type of trade unionism regulated by Act of Congress and supervised by the National Labor Relations Board is now fixed in the American industrial system.

DIET AND HEALTH

A Special Exercise For Buerger's Disease

By HERMAN N. BUNDESEN, M.D.

EVEN a slight burn can mean serious trouble, if you've got Buerger's disease, and a serious burn on the affected limb might lead to gangrene and eventual amputation.

Yet heat is good for your feet and legs.

What, then, should you do?

What to do As I advised yesterday, don't use hot water bottles, sun lamps or electric pads to warm your feet if you've got Buerger's disease. Instead, get into a bathtub full of water heated to precisely 100 degrees Fahrenheit. Get all the way in. Don't just dangle your feet or legs in the water.

I think you'll find this about the safest method of applying that needed heat to your affected limb.

Exercise Helps Proper exercise probably will be good for your leg, too. Buerger's exercise is a fairly simple one, which you can do at home without any special equipment.

Here's how: Raise your affected leg about 60 degrees above a horizontal line. Let it rest there (on a table, chair back or some other support) until the blood drains and it becomes blanched, or whitened. Usually, this will take from one-half minute to three minutes.

Then, let your foot dangle straight down from two to five minutes, until it assumes a natural reddish color, after which allow it to rest in a horizontal position for five minutes or so.

Aids Circulation

Now, repeat the cycle. Do this exercise for an hour at a time several times during the day. Its purpose, of course, is to aid circulation in your affected limb.

There are mechanical devices which also might do you some good. These are usually found at hospitals.

One is a boot-like contraption which encases your leg in an airtight chamber and subjects it alternately to pressure and suction. Another is an oscillating bed which alternately tilts your feet higher and then lower than your head.

While there have been cases of spontaneous cures, these instances, unfortunately, are rare.

QUESTION AND ANSWER

A. T.: Is multiple sclerosis inherited? Answer: There is sometimes a tendency for several cases of multiple sclerosis to occur in the same family. However, it is not usually hereditary.

CHAPTER THIRTEEN

KATIE laughed excitedly. She didn't believe one word Murphy said, and yet his saying them was—nice.

"I remember one particular dance," he continued. "The other girls were curled and frizzed, in pink dresses and blue—and you outshone them all in your demure black jumper."

Katie's eyes widened, and her cheeks flushed scarlet. "Oh," she said quickly, "that wasn't a jumper, Murphy. It was a black taffeta evening dress—but at the last minute, I lost courage and put a blouse on under its straps."

Both men shouted, and Katie stood smiling, confident that Fred's laughter, at least, was loving. And Murphy had always been nice to Katie.

"She does exactly the same thing now," Fred told. "You're right, Murphy—she hasn't changed. A year ago, she bought one of those off-the-shoulder dresses. All the women wear them at big parties. But Katie—she never gets enough courage to wear it in public. She sometimes puts it on, but I always have to wait while she changes into something else."

Katie attempted to toss her head. "I know I'm quaint," she said with a spunk. "But I am a good cook, too. Fred, you show Murphy his room, and I'll put lunch on the table. It's all ready."

She turned and almost ran to the kitchen. "You'll have to carry one of those heavy bags," Fred told his guest. "How long are you going to stay? A month?"

"With Katie's cooking? At least a month!"

He smiled up at the cuckoo clock as he passed it. He exclaimed softly at the appointments of his big square bedroom. "I take back every word I said about the country," he said charmingly to Fred.

"Oh, you just smell Katie's salt sticks," Fred laughed, going across the hall to his own room.

But when they came down to Katie's dainty luncheon table, with juncos perky in a lustre vase, the linen polished to a sheen that matched the silver, her salad and salt sticks and fresh sponge cake delicious, Murphy made a charming little speech about her home, and asked her humbly if he might stay for a while. "Not for professional reasons, Katie. You know as well as I do that Fred is the better doctor. But I'm a lone bachelor; I live in a club—"

"You're welcome to stay as long as you like," Katie broke in quickly. "We are delighted to have you."

"Katie's right," Fred echoed hospitably. "You surely know that without our saying so."

"I did know it. That's why I brought two heavy bags. But I've added a purpose since coming here. I've a little project now, on which

I want to do some research." "What sort of project?" Fred asked suspiciously. His mind darted to Linda, to Katie. He knew Murphy.

Murphy laughed, and gave his coffee cup to Katie for refilling. "You haven't changed either, Fritz. Your hair's going a little white—and the cause for that may develop in my research."

"I'm waiting," said Fred dryly. "Oh, I'll tell you. The project is to discover why Fred Seifer is here in Jennings."

Fred's eyebrows drew together. "But I've already told you the answer to that."

"Yes, you have. It's exactly as if you told me that the common cold is due to an infection, probably a virus. And then would expect all inquiry to cease."

"It might as well have ceased. We haven't learned much more by study."

"And you think my project will be as unfruitful?" "I don't know," said Fred earnestly. "I'll be glad to elaborate on what I've already told you. Where any calls this morning, Katie?"

"No, Fred. Not for you."

He smiled at her. Murphy considered Fred's smile and wished he had such an asset. Murphy was a very homely man; his mouth was large and thick-lipped, his dark eyes too often betrayed feelings which he would rather have concealed. His black hair was receding from his high forehead. He had to make speech and manner do everything for him in the way of charm.

Fred, too, had great charm of manner, but his was the charm of sincerity. He was a virile, handsy man, with a ready smile which crinkled the corners of his eyes, creased his cheeks and echoed warmly in his deep voice. Murphy Hudson envied his friend. Everything.

"It's wrong," Fred was telling him, "to condemn a town on sight."

"Statistics—provided by you—that it is a very small town. I've seen your excellent but small hospital. I know you work alone here—without the stimulation of other medical men. Those things are self-evident, Fritz!"

"Naturally. They all exist. Do they also tell you that there is work to be done here?"

"What sort of work?"

"Three thousand people, falling ill, recovering or dying. Babies being born. Men being kicked by horses, children falling on broken bottles..."

"Do you mean to spend your whole life on that sort of plain sewing?" "Maybe, maybe not. Someone should be doing it. Perhaps one day I'll get me an assistant doctor—a man like myself, unable to afford his own practice. And then, when he is trained, I may go on to other things."

"Maybe," said Fred earnestly. "Maybe, I say that, because the 'other things' may not be as good as what I have here."

"I suppose you think you can argue that."

"I can argue it. How many doctors do you know in the city who have died of heart failure in their fifties and sixties?"

"Country doctors don't do that!"

"Not as many. We work hard, but not under the pressure which you chaps know. And it's the pressure that kills you boys—trying to keep up with the mob. It's telling on you already, Murphy. You're only a year older, but I'll bet your blood pressure is twenty points higher than mine. I'll bet you've got some sort of barbiturate in your toilet kit—while I'm asleep before I hit the bed." He smiled to read acknowledgement in Murphy's black eyes.

"That's all very well, Fritz," Murphy said testily. "But I go on the theory that doctors are dedicated to do as much for the world as they can."

"Yes?" said Fred, with the old-world courtesy which was his. "Well—3,000 people isn't a very big world."

"Nonsense," said Fred thoughtfully. "If you contact that many people in the work you do?"

"Perhaps not. But everyone I do contact has some brain injury or trouble. While half of your patients don't need a doctor at all, and would get well without you."

"Well, your incidence of recovery is only fifty per cent."

Murphy flushed.

"I'm sorry," said Fred swiftly. "That was a foul. I shouldn't have said it."

"No," said his friend coldly, "you shouldn't. You must know enough about neuro-surgery for that."

"Now!" cried Fred. "That makes us even!"

"Are you boys quarreling?" asked Katie.

Both men turned toward her in surprise. "Only arguing," said Fred. "Do not let it worry you."

"You must know how stubborn that husband of yours is," Murphy urged upon her.

"She also knows how ignorant you can be," Fred retorted.

"Really, Murphy, you sit in your little puddle in the big city, and think it is the ocean!"

"And what do you think your spot of moisture is?" Fred chuckled, but his eyes sparkled. "The point is: I've dipped into your puddle; you've never been in mine. If you would let me tell you a few things..."

"I'm sitting here, defenseless. A guest in your home."

No matter what has been said of the Taft-Hartley Law, it has run from the 80th Congress to the 84th without change or amendment and has strengthened the unions. The history of trade unionism in the United States will show that the Wagner Law gave the unions a tremendous impetus, the Taft-Hartley Law stabilized union procedure, and while in the political strategy of unionism it was felt necessary to denounce Taft-Hartley, the reason it was not abandoned has been that the unions did very well under it.

They have become enormously rich and if their wealth increases at the present pace, it will not be long before they come into possession of many industries, not by a Socialist revolution but by the normally capitalist process of buying the shares of companies on the Stock Exchange.

The new national labor organization will be more powerful than either international union was during the period of competition between them. But with power must come responsibility. The agreement was correct in excluding racketeers and subversives, but that is not good enough. The racketeers need to be excluded actually and physically. All labor leaders know who they are and what unions they have invaded and which they control.

Similarly, the trade union leaders know who the Communists are and they do not strengthen public confidence by permitting unions expelled for having been led by subversives to return to American trade unionism by the back door of amalgamation with decent unions. That can only mean an open door for infiltration.

That many unions are accepting their responsibilities seriously is apparent in the publication of annual reports. But the democratic method of choosing union leadership is still to be hoped for and will undoubtedly come as the unions become more stabilized and businesslike. It is one thing to manage a union that is struggling for its existence; it is another to run a union whose business operations involve several hundred million dollars—and the members know as much arithmetic as the leaders.

The criticism of the labor union therefore shifts from theorizing as to whether they should exist at all to objections to racketeering, subversion and unstable practices. The course fixed in the middle 1930's of a recognized American type of trade unionism regulated by Act of Congress and supervised by the National Labor Relations Board is now fixed in the American industrial system.

DIET AND HEALTH

A Special Exercise For Buerger's Disease

By HERMAN N. BUNDESEN, M.D.

EVEN a slight burn can mean serious trouble, if you've got Buerger's disease, and a serious burn on the affected limb might lead to gangrene and eventual amputation.

Yet heat is good for your feet and legs.

What, then, should you do?

What to Do
As I advised yesterday, don't use hot water bottles, sun lamps or electric pads to warm your feet. If you've got Buerger's disease, instead, get into a bathtub full of water heated to precisely 100 degrees Fahrenheit. Get all the way in. Don't just dangle your feet or legs in the water.

I think you'll find this about the safest method of applying that needed heat to your affected limb.

Exercise Helps
Proper exercise probably will be good for your leg, too. Buerger's exercise is a fairly simple one, which you can do at home without any special equipment.

Here's how:
Raise your affected leg about 60 degrees above a horizontal line. Let it rest there (on a table, chair back or some other support) until the blood drains and it becomes blanched, or whitened. Usually, this will take from one-half minute to three minutes.

Then, let your foot dangle straight down from two to five minutes, until it assumes a natural reddish color, after which allow it to rest in a horizontal position for five minutes or so.

Aids Circulation

Now, repeat the cycle. Do this exercise for an hour at a time several times during the day. Its purpose, of course, is to aid circulation in your affected limb.

There are mechanical devices which also might do you some good. These are usually found at hospitals.

One is a boot-like contraption which encases your leg in an airtight chamber and subjects it alternately to pressure and suction. Another is an oscillating bed which alternately tilts your feet higher and then lower than your head.

While there have been cases of spontaneous cures, these instances, unfortunately, are rare.

QUESTION AND ANSWER

A. T.: Is multiple sclerosis inherited?

Answer: There is sometimes a tendency for several cases of multiple sclerosis to occur in the same family. However, it is not usually hereditary.

Doctor at the CROSSROADS

CHAPTER THIRTEEN

KATIE laughed excitedly. She didn't believe one word Murphy said, and yet his saying them was—nice.

"I remember one particular dance," he continued. "The other girls were curled and frizzed, in pink dresses and blue—and you outshone them all in your demure black jumper."

Katie's eyes widened, and her cheeks flushed scarlet. "Oh," she said quickly, "that wasn't a jumper, Murphy. It was a black taffeta evening dress—but at the last minute, I lost courage and put a blouse on under its straps."

Both men smiled, and Katie stood smiling, confident that Fred's laughter, at least, was loving. And Murphy had always been nice to Katie.

"She does exactly the same thing now," Fred told. "You're right, Murphy—she hasn't changed. A year ago, she bought one of those off-the-shoulder dresses. All the women wear them at big parties. But Katie—she never gets enough courage to wear it in public. She sometimes puts it on, but I always have to wait while she changes into something else."

Katie attempted to toss her head. "I know I'm quaint," she said with a smirk. "But I am a good cook, too. Fred, you show Murphy his room, and I'll put lunch on the table. It's all ready."

She turned and almost ran to the kitchen. "You'll have to carry one of those heavy bags," Fred told his guest. "How long are you going to stay? A month?"

"With Katie's cooking? At least a month!"

He smiled up at the cuckoo clock as he passed it. He exclaimed softly at the appointments of his big square bedroom. "I take back every word I said about the country," he said charmingly to Fred.

"Oh, you just smell Katie's salt sticks," Fred laughed, going across the hall to his own room.

But when they came down to Katie's dainty luncheon table, with jonnies perky in a lustre vase, the linen polished to a sheen that matched the silver, her salad and salt sticks and fresh sponge cake—delicious, Murphy made of his little speech about her home, and asked her humbly if he might stay for a while. "Not for professional reasons, Katie. You know as well as I do that Fred is the better doctor. But I'm a lone bachelor; I live in a club—"

"You're welcome to stay as long as you like," Katie broke in quickly. "We are delighted to have you."

"Katie's right," Fred echoed hospitably. "You surely know that without our saying so."

"I did know it. That's why I brought two heavy bags. But I've added a purpose since coming here. I've a little project now, on which

I want to do some research." "What sort of project?" Fred asked suspiciously. His mind darted to Linda, to Katie. He knew Murphy.

Murphy laughed, and gave his coffee cup to Katie for refilling. "You haven't changed either, Fritz. Your hair's going a little white—and the cause for that may develop in my research."

"Oh, I'll tell you. The project is to discover why Fred Beier is here in Jennings."

Fred's eyebrows drew together. "But I've already told you the answer to that."

"Yes, you have. It's exactly as if you told me that the common cold is due to an infection, probably a virus. And then would expect all inquiry to cease."

"It might as well have ceased. We haven't learned much more by study."

"And you think my project will be as unfruitful?"

"I don't know," said Fred earnestly. "I'll be glad to elaborate on what I've already told you. Were there any calls this morning, Katie?"

"No, Fred. Not for you."

He smiled at her. Murphy considered Fred's smile and wished he had such an asset. Murphy was a very homely man; his mouth was large and thick-lipped, his dark eyes too often betrayed feelings which he would rather have concealed. His black hair was receding from his high forehead. He had to make speech and manner do everything for him in the way of charm.

Fred, too, had great charm of manner, but his was the charm of sincerity. He was a virile, handsome man, with a ready smile which crinkled the corners of his eyes, creased his cheeks and echoed warmly in his deep voice. Murphy Hudson envied his friend. Everything.

"It's wrong," Fred was telling him, "to condemn a town on sight alone."

"Statistics—provided by you—that it is a very small town. I've seen your excellent but small hospital. I know you work alone here—without the stimulation of other medical men. Those things are self-evident, Fritz!"

"Naturally. They all exist. Do they also tell you that there is work to be done here?"

"What sort of work?"

"Three thousand people, falling ill, recovering or dying. Babies being born. Men being kicked by horses, children falling on broken bottles..."

"Do you mean to spend your whole life on that sort of plain sewing?"

"Maybe, maybe not. Someone should be doing it. Perhaps one day I'll get me an assistant doctor—a man like myself, unable to afford his own practice. And then, when he is trained, I may go on to other things."

"Maybe," said Fred earnestly. "Maybe, I say that, because the 'other things' may not be as good as what I have here."

"I suppose you think you can argue that."

"I can argue it. How many doctors do you know in the city who have died of heart failure in their fifties and sixties?"

"Country doctors don't do that!"

"Not as many. We work hard, but not under the pressure which you chaps know. And it's the pressure that kills you boys—trying to keep up with the mob. It's telling you already, Murphy. You're only a year older, but I'll bet your blood pressure is twenty points higher than mine. I'll bet you've got some sort of barbiturate in your toilet kit—while I'm asleep before I hit the bed." He smiled to read acknowledgement in Murphy's black eyes.

"That's all very well, Fritz. Murphy said testily, "but I go on the theory that doctors are dedicated to do as much for the world as they can."

"Yes?" said Fred, with the old-world courtesy which was his.

"Well—3,000 people isn't a very big world."

"I wonder," said Fred thoughtfully, "if you think that many people in the work you do?"

"Perhaps not. But everyone I do contact has some brain injury or trouble. While half of your patients don't need a doctor at all, and would get well without you."

"Well, your incidence of recovery is only fifty per cent."

Murphy flushed.

"I'm sorry," said Fred swiftly. "That was a foul. I shouldn't have said it."

"No," said his friend coldly, "you shouldn't. You must still know enough about neuro-surgery for that."

"Now!" cried Fred. "That makes us even!"

"Are you boys quarreling?" asked Katie.

Both men turned toward her in surprise. "Only arguing," said Fred. "Do not let it worry you."

"You must know how stubborn that husband of yours is," Murphy urged upon her.

"She also knows how ignorant you can be," Fred retorted. "Really, Murphy, you sit in your little puddle in the big city, and think it is the ocean!"

"And what do you think your spot of moisture is?"

Fred chuckled, but his eyes sparkled. "The point is: I've dipped into your puddle; you've never been in mine. If you would let me tell you a few things..."

"I'm sitting here, defenseless. A guest in your home."

Child Study League Member Shows Film On Puerto Rico

Mrs. Brookhart Is Hostess To Session

Movies taken in Puerto Rico were shown during a meeting of the Williamsport Child Study League, which was held in the home of Mrs. Jack Brookhart.

Mrs. Robert Barnes showed movies of scenes taken while she and her family lived on the island, where Mr. Barnes managed a hospital.

The film revealed that most of the natives of the island live in nine foot square houses. They have no beds, stoves or refrigerators. The cooking is done over a charcoal fire out-of-doors.

Puerto Rico was depicted as a mountainous country. The warm climate and the sandy soil produce many beautiful flowers and plants. No grass grows in the shade, but coconuts and bananas grow along the sea shore.

The natives harvest the coconuts and bananas green and take them to market. Sugar cane, one of the chief products, was shown being harvested with heavy machinery. After it is processed, the sugar has a dark color and strong flavor. It is sent to the United States to be refined.

Mrs. Barnes displayed many souvenirs from the islands. Among them were musical instruments, which the natives use for their favorite pastime, singing and dancing. She also displayed a dipper made from half of a coconut, table mats, and purses made by the islanders.

Mrs. Jack Clark presided at a business session, which was held with the guests assembled around a fire burning in the fireplace. The Brookhart home was decorated in a Valentine theme for the occasion.

Officers reports were given by Mrs. Brookhart and Mrs. Paul Whitsett. Mrs. Glenn McCoy reported on plans for a fund-raising project for the club, Mrs. Don McDill and Mrs. Don Schietel led group discussion and Mrs. Whitsett was appointed to be in charge of the project, which was voted into effect by the members.

It was announced that the club members had collected $338.38 in their participation in the Polio drive. A salad course was served by the hostess and Mrs. Clark during a social hour at the close of the meeting.

Lemon Will Add Sparkle To Food

Lemons can transform neglected but necessary vegetables into foods that even children like, according to Mary Morgan. The Ohio State University extension nutritionist says a dish of lemon quarters served with vegetables is as important as salt and pepper.

Lemon Butter, made with two parts melted butter and one part lemon juice, is good with asparagus, artichokes, cabbage, cauliflower, broccoli, and Brussels sprouts. A few drops of lemon juice on melon brings out hidden flavor. Lemon juice also is good in prune, pineapple, tomato, and other fruit juices.

For Sunday breakfast, the specialist suggests sprinkling buttered waffles or hot cakes with sugar and a liberal squeeze of lemon juice.

Romano cheese, used widely in Italian dishes, may now be obtained in six-ounce wedge-shaped portions. Grate only as much of the cheese as you are planning to serve at the time; cover the rest tightly with cellophane wrapping or aluminum foil and refrigerate until needed.

Want to top that casserole dish with buttered bread crumbs? One way to prepare the crumbs is to melt about a third of a cup of butter or margarine in a skillet and then mix well with a cup of fine dry bread crumbs.

Slimy Breakfast Causes Fatigue, Injures Health

Were you one of those thirty million people who skipped or skimmed breakfast this morning? Were you expecting the "coffee break" to take care of your nutritional needs?

I am sorry to disappoint you—a cup of coffee will not do it. No, not even if you add a whole handful of vitamin pills.

You will not get a rash on the first morning you join the "never-mind-breakfast" club. But some 90 days later the symptoms may show up. Is this difficult to believe? The evidence indicates that a poor breakfast is a bad pattern for nutritional health. And malnutrition, even of a minor sort, produces a multitude of symptoms—physical, mental, and emotional.

A good breakfast should comprise about one-fourth of your total food for the day. It should consist of a variety of wholesome foods: fruit (cooked, canned, raw) or juice, cereal, eggs or meat, enriched bread or toast, milk, and coffee or tea if you wish it. Such a breakfast obviously cannot be eaten on the way to the office or job.

What can a good breakfast do? It can help an adolescent (who needs more of most foods than his parents) get enough calories and essential nutrients for growth and to withstand the rigors of active teen-age life without depending too much on candy bars and soda pop.

Teenagers need not only more calories but also more protein, such as they can get abundantly in bread, milk, meat and eggs. It can help an expectant mother or nursing mother to meet her unique nutritional needs without slipping into the habit of constant nibbling. Nibbling is a notoriously bad eating practice. Frequently it is one of the causes of excessive weight gain during pregnancy.

A good breakfast, making for better food distribution over the day, helps to avoid or stop nibbling. When breakfast is the important meal it should be, it establishes a family eating pattern from which growing children will profit all their lives.

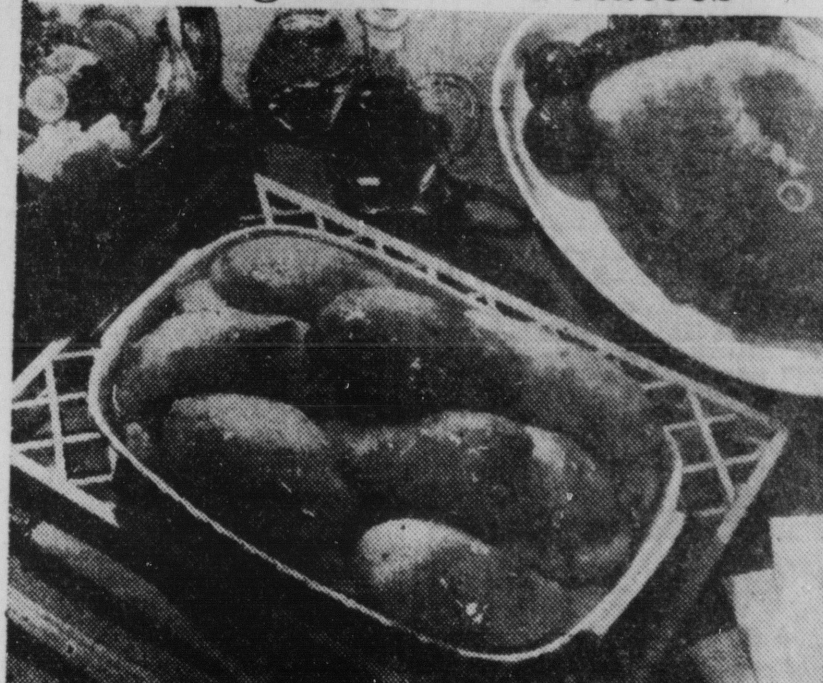

Studies at the University of Iowa indicate that a good breakfast tends to reduce late morning fatigue. This may help to prevent industrial accidents in the before-noon hour, the period when accidents in industrial plants are most frequent.

People on weight maintaining or reducing diets will find that calorie restriction is easier to take when one-fourth of the daily food allowance is eaten at breakfast. A reducing diet, no matter what food faddists may say to the contrary, very definitely should start with a good breakfast—one containing fruit or juice, an egg, or breakfast meat, bread or toast with a small amount of butter or margarine and a beverage.

Without a doubt, a good breakfast not only contributes to better nutritional health, but is a family morale builder as well. Both young and old, children as well as housewives, executives, and people working with their hands, will work with greater ease, with less emotional stress and with greater mental alertness, and will do better work, when breakfast is neither skipped nor skimmed.

Do not join the never-mind-breakfast club! The nutritionally wise, the people concerned with better health for better living, always eat a good breakfast.

Oranged Sweet Potatoes

Casseroles are always good. But when they're Oranged Jersey Sweets with that special sauce, they're not just good, they're delicious.

6 medium Jersey Sweets
1 1/2 cup brown sugar, firmly packed
1/2 cup light Karo
1 cup orange juice
2 tablesp. grated orange rind
1/4 tablesp. cinnamon
2 tablesp. butter or margarine
Pinch salt

Cook unpeeled New Jersey Sweets in boiling, salted water till almost tender. Drain. Cool slightly and peel. Cut in half lengthwise and arrange in covered casserole. Meanwhile combine sugar and remaining ingredients in medium sized saucepan. Bring to a full rolling boil and boil, stirring occasionally until slightly thickened—about 3 minutes. Pour sauce over Jersey Sweets in casserole, cover and bake at 375°F. 15 minutes. Serve piping hot. Makes 6 servings.

Exhibit In Public Library Made By Girl Scout Troop

The members of Girl Scouts Troop 21, as an activity in a "My Troop" badge, have completed two exhibits of typical Girl Scout activities, which are on display in the Pickaway County District Public Library.

The members of the troop, under the direction of Mrs. L. P. McBrearty and Mrs. J. Grant, were divided into two patrols for this activity. Each of the patrols spent three meeting sessions on their display. Patrol 1 has depicted a horse-shoe flag ceremony, typical of opening ceremonies at all Girl Scout functions.

Patrol 2 has prepared a friendship circle around a campfire. The Girl Scouts are represented by pipe cleaner figures and all details of the scenes are authentic representations of actual Girl Scout activities.

The girls of the troop are working to complete all the requirements of the "My Troop" badge before the Spring Court of Awards, when they will receive a proficiency badge for their efforts.

Troop members are: Rita Barthelme, Barbara Bell, Paula Denham, Pamela Grant, Marilyn Hartman, Linda Leist, Diane McBrearty, Kathy Schaub, Patricia Schroder, Sue Ann Stevens, Mary Anne Johnson, Barbara Starkey, Sandy Smith, Mary Susa, Judy Woodward, and Judy Callahan.

Members of Troop 11, led by Mrs. John Jackson, are working on a special Girl Scout Week activity, which will be celebrated in March. Mrs. Glenn Hines and Mrs. Russell Ward took the members of their Troop 24 on a tour of the city building. Police Chief Elmer Meriman led the group in a question and answer period on law enforcement. Later the girls were entertained by the leaders with treats in a downtown restaurant.

Troop 25, led by Mrs. William J. Wilson and Mrs. John Keller, is practicing on the rules of flag ceremonies. Games and a story telling period formed activities of a recreation period at the session.

Brownie Troop 28, also was conducted on a tour of the city buildings. Following their trip, the girls returned to headquarters for an evaluation period and a program of games. Mrs. Lewis Cooper and Mrs. Richard E. Conrad are troop leaders.

Child Study League Member Shows Film On Puerto Rico

Mrs. Brookhart Is Hostess To Session

Movies taken in Puerto Rico were shown during a meeting of the Williamsport Child Study League, which was held in the home of Mrs. Jack Brookhart.

Mrs. Robert Barnes showed movies of scenes taken while she and her family lived on the island, where Mr. Barnes managed a hospital.

The film revealed that most of the natives of the island live in nine foot square houses. They have no beds, stoves or refrigerators. The cooking is done over a charcoal fire out-of-doors.

Puerto Rico was depicted as a mountainous country. The warm climate and the sandy soil produce many beautiful flowers and plants. No grass grows in the shade, but coconuts and bananas grow along the sea shore.

The natives harvest the coconuts and bananas green and take them to market. Sugar cane, one of the chief products, was shown being harvested with heavy machinery. After it is processed, the sugar has a dark color and strong flavor. It is sent to the United States to be refined.

Mrs. Barnes displayed many souvenirs from the islands. Among them were musical instruments, which the natives use for their favorite pastime, singing and dancing. She also displayed a dipper made from half of a coconut, table mats, and purses made by the islanders.

Mrs. Jack Clark presided at a business session, which was held with the guests assembled around a fire burning in the fireplace. The Brookhart home was decorated in a Valentine theme for the occasion. Officer reports were given by Mrs. Brookhart and Mrs. Paul Whitised. Mrs. Glenn McCoy reported on plans for a fund-raising project for the club. Mrs. Don McDill and Mrs. Don Schietel led group discussion and Mrs. Whitised was appointed to be in charge of the project, which was voted into effect by the members.

It was announced that the club members had collected $338.38 in their participation in the Polio drive.

A salad course was served by the hostess and Mrs. Clark during a social hour at the close of the meeting.

Mrs. Campbell Hosts Meeting Of Church Group

Group A of the Women's Association of the Presbyterian Church met in the home of Mrs. G. Guy Campbell of S. Court St.

Mrs. Campbell conducted a short business session. A report was given on a dinner served for the young Couples class Sunday evening.

Mrs. Walter Downing, program chairman presented Miss Mary Hulse for the Devotions. She read the second Chapter of Hebrews, followed by a prayer.

Mrs. J. B. Stevenson presented a paper on Pakistan, using a map to locate positions in her presentation of the physical, political, economic and religious aspects of the country.

She concluded her address with a group discussion of the specific problems facing foreign missionaries in Pakistan.

During a social hour, refreshments were served by Mrs. Campbell and Mrs. Charles Smith. Mrs. Ed Gregg and Mrs. George Steele presided at a tea table which was decorated in patriotic colors in keeping with a Washington's birthday theme.

Mrs. Steele will be hostess to a March session in her home on E. Main St. Mrs. Loring Evans will serve as co-hostess. Program leaders will be Mrs. Melvin Yates and Mrs. Joe Adkins.

Lemon Will Add Sparkle To Food

Lemons can transform neglected but necessary vegetables into foods that even children like, according to Mary Morgan. The Ohio State University extension nutritionist says a dish of lemon quarters served with vegetables is as important as salt and pepper.

Lemon Butter, made with two parts melted butter and one part lemon juice, is good with asparagus, artichokes, cabbage, cauliflower, broccoli, and Brussel sprouts. A few drops of lemon juice on melon brings out hidden flavor. Lemon juice also is good in prune, pineapple, tomato, and other fruit juices.

For Sunday breakfast, the special list suggests sprinkling buttered waffles or hot cakes with sugar and a liberal squeeze of lemon juice.

Romano cheese, used widely in Italian dishes, may now be obtained in six-ounce wedge-shaped portions. Grate only as much of the cheese as you are planning to serve at the time; cover the rest tightly with cellophane wrapping or aluminum foil and refrigerate until needed.

Want to top that casserole dish with buttered bread crumbs? One way to prepare the crumbs is to melt about a third of a cup of butter or margarine in a skillet and then mix well with a cup of fine dry bread crumbs.

Skimpy Breakfast Causes Fatigue, Injures Health

Were you one of some thirty million people who skipped or skimmed breakfast this morning? Were you expecting the "coffee break" to take care of your nutritional needs?

I am sorry to disappoint you—a cup of coffee will not do it. No, not even if you add a whole handful of vitamin pills.

You will not get a rash on the first morning you join the "never-mind-breakfast" club. But some 90 days later the symptoms may show up. Is this difficult to believe? The evidence indicates that a poor breakfast is a bad pattern for nutritional health. And malnutrition, even of a minor sort, produces a multitude of symptoms — physical, mental, and emotional.

A good breakfast should comprise about one-fourth of your total food for the day. It should consist of a variety of wholesome foods: fruit (cooked, canned, raw) or juice, cereal, eggs or meat, enriched bread or toast, milk, and coffee or tea if you wish it. Such a breakfast obviously cannot be eaten on the way to the office or job.

What can a good breakfast do? It can help an adolescent (who needs more of most foods than his parents) get enough calories and essential nutrients for growth and to withstand the rigors of active teen-age life without depending too much on candy bars and soda pop. Teenagers need not only more calories but also more protein, such as they can get abundantly in bread, milk, meat and eggs.

It can help an expectant mother or nursing mother to meet her unique nutritional needs without slipping into the habit of constant nibbling. Nibbling is a notoriously bad eating practice. Frequently it is one of the causes of excessive weight gain during pregnancy. A good breakfast, making for better food distribution over the day, helps to avoid or stop nibbling.

When breakfast is the important meal it should be, it establishes a family eating pattern from which growing children will profit all their lives.

Studies at the University of Iowa indicate that a good breakfast tends to reduce late morning fatigue. This may help to prevent industrial accidents in the before-noon hour, the period when accidents in industrial plants are most frequent.

People on weight maintaining or reducing diets will find that calorie restriction is easier to take when one-fourth of the daily food allowance is eaten at breakfast. A reducing diet, no matter what food faddists may say to the contrary, very definitely should start with a good breakfast — one containing fruit or juice, an egg, or breakfast meat, bread or toast with a small amount of butter or margarine and a beverage.

Without a doubt, a good breakfast not only contributes to better nutritional health, but is a family morale builder as well.

Both young and old, children as well as housewives, executives, and people working with their hands, will work with greater ease, with less emotional stress and with greater mental alertness, and will do better work, when breakfast is neither skipped nor skimmed.

Do not join the never-mind-breakfast club! The nutritionally wise, the people concerned with better health for better living, always eat a good breakfast.

Casseroles are always good. But when they're Oranged Jersey Sweets with that special sauce, they're not just good, they're delicious.

4 medium Jersey Sweets
1/2 cup brown sugar, firmly packed
1/2 cup light Karo
1 cup orange juice

2 tablesp. grated orange rind
1/4 tablesp. cinnamon
2 tablesp. butter or margarine
Pinch salt

Cook unpeeled New Jersey Sweets in boiling, salted water till almost tender. Drain. Cool slightly and peel. Cut in half lengthwise and arrange in covered casserole. Meanwhile combine sugar and remaining ingredients in medium sized saucepan. Bring to a full rolling boil and boil, stirring occasionally until slightly thickened—about 3 minutes. Pour sauce over Jersey Sweets in casserole, cover and bake at 375°F. 15 minutes. Serve piping hot. Makes 6 servings.

Exhibit In Public Library Made By Girl Scout Troop

The members of Girl Scouts Troop 21, as an activity in a "My Troop" badge, have completed two exhibits of typical Girl Scout activities, which are on display in the Pickaway County District Public Library.

The members of the troop, under the direction of Mrs. L. P. McBrearty and Mrs. J. Grant, were divided into two patrols for this activity. Each of the patrols spent three meeting sessions on their display. Patrol 1 has depicted a horse-shoe flag ceremony, typical of opening ceremonies at all Girl Scout functions.

Patrol 2 has prepared a friendship circle around a campfire. The Girl Scouts are represented by pipe cleaner figures and all details of the scenes are authentic representations of actual Girl Scout activities.

The girls of the troop are working to complete all the requirements of the "My Troop" badge before the Spring Court of Awards, when they will receive a proficiency badge for their efforts.

Troop members are: Rita Barthelomew, Barbara Bell, Paula Denham, Pamela Grant, Marilyn Hartman, Linda Leist, Diane McBrearty, Kathy Schaub, Patricia Schroder, Sue Ann Stevens, Mary Anne Johnson, Barbara Starkey, Sandy Smith, Mary Susa, Judy Woodward, and Judy Callihan.

Members of Troop 11, led by Mrs. John Jackson, are working on a special Girl Scout Week activity, which will be celebrated in March.

Mrs. Glenn Hines and Mrs. Russell Ward took the members of their Troop 24 on a tour of the city building. Police Chief Elmer Meriman led the group in a question and answer period on law enforcement. Later the girls were entertained by the leaders with treats in a downtown restaurant.

Troop 25, led by Mrs. William J. Wilson and Mrs. John Keller, is practicing on the rules of Flag ceremonies. Games and a story telling period formed activities of a recreation period at the session.

Brownie Troop 28, also was conducted on a tour of the city buildings. Following their trip, the girls returned to headquarters for an evaluation period and a program of games. Mrs. Lewis Cooper and Mrs. Richard E. Conrad are troop leaders.

Hillsboro Five Defeats Tigers By 64 To 57

Without the services of 6' 3" Walt Sieverts, who was ill, Circleville suffered a 64-57 defeat at the hands of Hillsboro there Friday night.

The loss avenged the CHS Tigers' lone win of the season over the Indians. On Jan. 7, the Tigers took a 69-67 triple overtime thriller from Hillsboro.

Jim McConnell had 22 points and

Blue Ruler Given Nod As Favorite

ARCADIA, Calif. (AP) — It was Texas-owned Blue Ruler against the field today as Santa Anita prepared to stage the 17th running of its $100,000 added derby.

Blue Ruler, seeking his sixth straight and most important victory, was the individual favorite, and with his stablemate, Jean's Joe, also a top choice.

Fourteen colts were named but there was a good chance that the field would be less by post time (8 p. m. EST) in view of the changing condition of the track.

UCLA, Oregon Look Best On Pacific Coast

NCAA Tourny Berths At Stake As Races Appear Running Close

The Associated Press Time is running out for the contenders to the Pacific Coast Conference basketball championship, and it looks like UCLA and Oregon State in the showdown for the automatic NCAA tournament berth that goes with the title.

Oregon State, which wrapped up the northern division title earlier this week, extended its unbeaten league record to 13 games last night by thumping Washington State 73-61. UCLA doesn't have the southern division crown under lock and key yet, but the UCLAs don't need much more to stow it away after beating California 55-48 while second place Stanford slipped 73-63 against Southern California.

That combination clinched at least a tie for UCLA. All the Bruins need is another victory, or a second Stanford defeat, when they go up against the same foes tonight. Then they'd advance to the three-game playoff against Oregon State starting March 4.

Idaho State could move into a reserved NCAA spot tonight against Montana State. A victory would give the Bengals their third straight Rocky Mountain Conference championship. They beat Montana State 78-57 last night, but it wasn't counted in the title race.

All of which made for a healthy NCAA tournament picture while the competing NIT woke up with some headaches this morning. The hangover followed Dayton's 80-69 victory over Cincinnati and Radford's 73-61 upset of Holy Cross. Dayton and Cincinnati both are NIT entries and the game should have served to build up a possible future NIT clash, but the fact that it was Cincinnati's second defeat by a NIT foe this week (Duke's spilled the Bearcats, too) took the glitter off that angle.

Texas Tech and Pennsylvania, each with an eye on the NCAA spot that goes with their conference crowns, kept bearing down on the title trail. Tech beat Arizona 68-63 in an important Border Conference game. Penn beat Harvard 86-55 in the Ivy League.

Villanova, named as an NCAA at-large choice a few hours earlier, swamped Lebanon Valley 85-65. Colgate upset Penn State, 69-59. Elsewhere, Virginia handed Virginia Tech its 18th straight defeat 107-59, and South Carolina whipped Clemson 85-68.

Other major results: Western Kentucky 75 Xavier (Ohio) 72; Washington 80 Oregon 60; West Texas State 80 New Mexico A&M 71.

Dayton Trips Bearcats 80-69

CINCINNATI (AP)—Dayton's Flyers will go into the NIT on at least even terms with Cincinnati, Ohio's other NIT-bound team. The Flyers smacked Cincinnati, 80-69, last night avenging an earlier 78-75 loss to the Bearcats.

John Horan's slick ball handling and sharpshooting was a major actor in the Flyers' victory. Horan scored 20 of his 27 points in the second half.

The win gave Dayton a 19-3 season record and moved the Flyers into second place in state standings ahead of Cincinnati. The Bearcats have a 19-5 record. Marietta still is the top team in the state with a 20-2 record.

All Giant Players Sign Contracts

NEW YORK (AP)—First in the National League, first in the World Series and first in all players signed is the proud boast of the world champion New York Giants.

The Giants beat the other clubs to the wire by signing rookie Bob Lenson yesterday. He is a left-handed outfielder, who slammed 64 home runs for Nashville last season while leading the Southern Assn. with a .345 average.

It was estimated that the players got $550,000 or almost 15 per cent more than last year.

NCAA Football TV Policy Readied

CHICAGO (AP)—The 1955 NCAA football television plan will be announced sometime early next week, Walter Byers, executive director of the association, reports.

Byers said the National Collegiate Athletic Assn. television committee has agreed on a plan which will be submitted for an approval vote by March 2.

Byers would not indicate what the 12-man committee had agreed upon nor would he say how, if at all, it differed from last year's game-of-the-week plan.

Ohio Assembly Chiefs Study Hospital Needs

Necessity Of Better Staff May Be Given Priority In Planning

COLUMBUS, Ohio (AP)—Republican legislative leaders appear confident that evidence is mounting in favor of their stand against a rush to build vast new mental hospitals before they can be staffed.

House Speaker Roger Cloud (R-Logan) was among the first to urge a close look at building proposals to determine their need. He said that should be done before increasing the tax burden to pay for them.

Without closing the door against such proposals, Cloud expressed belief some other approach might be more effective in dealing with Ohio's pressing mental health problems.

Backed by Rep. Kline L. Roberts (R-Franklin), House floor leader in the GOP-controlled Legislature, Cloud aroused interest among lawmakers and others.

Senators and representatives toured state hospitals in Columbus for a first-hand look at some of the institutions housing 36,000 Ohio mental patients.

A nationally recognized authority on mental illness told a joint Senate-House meeting that Ohio should put training of doctors, psychologists and nurses ahead of hospital building.

"Give first priority to buying 'brains'—professional staff to provide treatment—and second priority to buying bricks" for buildings, said Dr. William C. Menninger of Topeka, Kan.

"Discard the erroneous impression about the incurability of mental illness," he said, "and recognize that it has a higher probability of recovery than almost any other group of illnesses."

Dr. Menninger said Kansas had been so successful in treating mental patients he felt that state never would need to carry out an earlier recommendation to build 38 million dollars worth of new hospitals.

His talk, on invitation of the Legislature, followed recently published accounts of successful use of new drugs in treating mental illness. The reports said nationwide use of the drugs shows that patients can leave mental hospitals to pursue normal lives in a remarkably short time.

Officials said Ohio mental institutions have been trying the drugs for about a year. Hedged with professional caution, they express belief the drugs permit patients to return home sooner than without their use.

Dr. Lowell O. Dillon, state mental health commissioner, identified the new drugs as chlorpromazine and rauwolfia. Chlorpromazine, also known as R. P. 4560, came to the United States from France; Rauwolfia from India.

Dr. Dillon said R. P. 4560 is not a cure-all. But he described the drug as "very promising."

"People who have been emotionally disturbed and who require supervision become amenable to treatment under the drug," he said.

Terming the drug one of the best things in recent years, Dr. Dillon asserted its use possibly shortens the stay of patients in hospitals.

Some patients react better to treatment with rauwolfia, he added.

Other accounts termed R. P. 4560 the greatest immediate practical discovery in efforts to overcome mental illness. The reports told of rapid recovery and release from hospitals of patients, many of them considered hopeless.

World Day Of Prayer Set For Observance On Feb. 25

NEW YORK—A day of prayer begun by a small group of U. S. women 68 years ago will be marked by millions of Christians around the globe next week at services dedicated to world peace and understanding.

On Friday, Feb. 25, the World Day of Prayer will be observed in more than 20,000 U. S. communities and in more than 130 other countries on almost every continent and island.

At services circling the earth for more than 24 hours, people of all ages and races will pray in more than a thousand languages and dialects for understanding among the nations of the world. And with their prayers will go offerings of money and material goods to help relieve human need and suffering wherever it exists. In the U. S. alone last year, World Day of Prayer offerings provided more than $437,563 for cooperative Christian ministries in health, education, and welfare at home and abroad.

Now an international event, the World Day of Prayer was originally ed by Presbyterian women in Brooklyn as a day of prayer and giving for national missions. The idea was taken up by other church groups in the U. S. and overseas. In 1927 the first Friday in Lent became officially the World Day of Prayer. The movement has continued to grow. This year Bali, Czechoslovakia, Israel, Timor, Gambia, Gibraltar, Nauru, New Britain, Okinawa, Papua and Togoland were added to the long list of territories where services are held.

The chain of prayer will begin at daybreak in the Fiji and Tonga Islands, just west of the International Date Line. From there, the services will move westward with the sun until the last prayers have been said at nightfall on St. Lawrence Island, off the Alaskan coast, east of the dateline.

A special feature of the observance this year is a globe-circling trip by an international team of Protestant women who will visit a dozen countries in the Middle and Far East, Africa, and Europe for conferences on the common concerns of women of the churches for world peace and unity among Christians.

The trip is sponsored by United Church Women, a general department of the National Council of the Churches of Christ in the U.S.A., which represents upwards of ten million American women. When U. S. church women mark the World Day of Prayer in their own communities, the team they have sent out will be attending what may be the first sunrise service with women in Suva, in the Fiji Islands.

The team is headed by Mrs. James D. Wyker of Mount Vernon, Ohio, president of United Church Women. Other members are Miss Josefina Phodaca of the Philippines, Miss Felicia Sunderlal of India, and Mrs. David D. Baker of New York City, editor of the U.C.W.'s monthly publication, The Church Woman.

Purpose of the trip, Mrs. Wyker said, is "to make tangible the fellowship through prayer that U. S. church women have long felt with Christian women overseas."

World Day of Prayer observances in this country are sponsored by United Church Women and its members in more than 1,900 affiliated state and local councils. In addition, special committees are organized in thousands of communities to help prepare for the day.

Services in this country are held not only in churches, but in hospitals, schools, colleges and universities. Factory workers bow their heads in daylight services, and in many stores and offices employees meet in prayer before or during working hours.

With the theme this year, "Abide in Me," (John 15:4), the prayers ask not only for peace but for faith, courage, and awareness of "the needs of people everywhere—the lonely, the hungry, the cold, the homeless, those who suffer from the iniquities of man."

Honey Buckets Prove To Be Very 'Sweet'

WACO, Tex. (AP)—Jay Renfro, beekeeper, is a changed man since a Michigan honey dealer got the sweetest consignment of honey ever shipped out of central Texas.

Renfro sold a sizeable order of honey to E. M. Warrick, local honey broker. Warrick sold it to M. L. Hubbard, of Onsted, Mich.

For awhile the transaction was a paper deal and the honey remained in Renfro's warehouse. Renfro left town for a few days. About the same time, Hubbard got an offer for the honey and wanted it shipped to him immediately. Warrick didn't think Renfro would have any objections. So he entered Renfro's warehouse and shipped 1,800 buckets of honey to Michigan.

Renfro was more than a little upset when he returned.

"Two of those buckets are full of my life's savings," he told Warrick. "More than $500 in half dollars."

Warrick got Hubbard on the telephone. Sure, Hubbard said, he'd look for the money in the honey. But he figured it was rather like looking for a needle in a beehive.

A few hours later he telephoned back, reporting: "By golly, you were right. The buckets are full of half dollars!" Renfro has some $522 back and tells his friends: "No more honey money buckets for me."

'Worthless' Gems Valued At $6000

DAYTON (AP)—Last Nov. 29, Oscar Simpson, 33-year-old unemployed Dayton man, found in a street gutter what he thought was some costume jewelry in a bag.

He tossed the jewelry into the back of his car, thinking it was worthless. This week, he found an address in the shaving kit and called Mr. and Mrs. A. B. Hilton of Centerville.

Yes, they had lost the overnight bag while going to their home from the airport. The jewelry? Yes, it belonged to them—diamonds, gold, emeralds and rubies valued at $6,000.

House Of Lords Shuns Plea To Put Man's Title Aside

LONDON (AP)—The House of Lords refused today to let a promising young Socialist politician surrender his hereditary title to a high ranking title so he could keep his seat in the House of Commons.

A committee of robed noblemen rejected the plea of Anthony Neil Wedgwood Benn, 29, for a personal exception to put the title in cold storage during his lifetime and save it for his son, now 3 1/2.

Wedgwood Benn's pretty young American wife—the former Caroline Middleton of Cincinnati, Ohio—blushed as her husband told how she agreed with his attempt to remain a commoner instead of a peeress. He insisted he was not bent on a crusade to upset tradition but was interested only in staying in the House of Commons. Under the British system he would be forced to give up his seat there upon inheriting the title of his father, Viscount Stansgate.

Lord Stansgate, 77, sat in the committee room facing a 30-foot painting of "The Judgment of Daniel" as his son presented his petition. Stansgate, himself a prominent Socialist member of Commons until his elevation to the peerage in 1942, had agreed to his son's attempt to sidestep the title.

"My petition involves no disrespect to your Lords' house," Wedgwood Benn explained. "Unlike the medieval barons, some of whom regarded service as a burden, I only make this plea so that it may be open to me to continue service in another house (Commons)."

During the 17th century an epidemic of resignations led to imposition of a rule that no peer could surrender a title. Wedgwood said times have changed.

Mrs. Wedgwood Benn sat with her father-in-law as her husband told how he first considered the possibility of transferring the peerage to her.

"She is an American citizen but that is no bar," he said. "The stock has been strengthened many times by the importation of blood from abroad."

She blushed and smiled as her husband went on to plead that she was the only person "in any true and real sense" affected by his attempt to leave the title in abeyance.

The House of Lords committee ruled against him almost immediately. Wedgwood Benn said he had not decided whether to present a bill to both houses permitting him to put the title in cold storage during his lifetime.

Lord Stansgate, 77, sat in the committee room facing a 30-foot painting of "The Judgment of Daniel" as his son presented his petition. Stansgate, himself a prominent Socialist member of Commons until his elevation to the peerage in 1942, had agreed to his son's attempt to sidestep the title.

"My petition involves no disrespect to your Lords' house," Wedgwood Benn explained. "Unlike the medieval barons, some of whom regarded service as a burden, I only make this plea so that it may be open to me to continue service in another house (Commons)."

During the 17th century an epidemic of resignations led to imposition of a rule that no peer could surrender a title. Wedgwood said times have changed.

Mrs. Wedgwood Benn sat with her father-in-law as her husband told how he first considered the possibility of transferring the peerage to her.

Honey Buckets Prove To Be Very 'Sweet'

WACO, Tex. (AP)—Jay Renfro, beekeeper, is a changed man since a Michigan honey dealer got the sweetest consignment of honey ever shipped out of central Texas.

Renfro sold a sizeable order of honey to E. M. Warrick, local honey broker. Warrick sold it to M. L. Hubbard, of Onsted, Mich.

For awhile the transaction was a paper deal and the honey remained in Renfro's warehouse.

Renfro left town for a few days. About the same time, Hubbard got an offer for the honey and wanted it shipped to him immediately. Warrick didn't think Renfro would have any objections. So he entered Renfro's warehouse and shipped 1,800 buckets of honey to Michigan.

Renfro was more than a little upset when he returned.

"Two of those buckets are full of my life's savings," he told Warrick. "More than $500 in half dollars."

Warrick got Hubbard on the telephone.

Sure, Hubbard said, he'd look for the money in the honey. But he figured it was rather like looking for a needle in a haystack.

A few hours later he telephoned back, reporting:

"By golly, you were right. The buckets are full of half dollars!"

Renfro has some $522 back and tells his friends:

"No more honey money buckets for me."

National Anthem In Jazz Rapped

LUENEBURG, Germany (AP)—A young German bandleader faced a charge today of disgracing the West German national anthem by playing it in hot jazz style.

Horst Walter, 23, was fired for his hot licks. If convicted, he could be sentenced to up to three months in jail.
